Big News for Many.
Power Men, Oil Men.
And Little Men.
Sullivan Met the Prince.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HERE IS some news important to millions of Americans, including those whose business is selling electric power to the public.

Development of the Diesel engine progresses rapidly. Engines will produce power, electric or other on a scale big or little, that will compete with power companies as automobiles and motor trucks now compete with railroads.

WHEN ENGLAND was in financial distress 100 years ago Macaulay asked what people would say "if we were to prophesy that in the year 1930, machines, constructed on principles yet undiscovered, will be in every house; that there will be no highways but railroads, no traveling but by steam," etc.

He little dreamed that the "machines in every house" would include telephones carrying the voice across the ocean, lights, washing machines, fans and cook stoves run by electricity.

And, foreseeing an end of stage coach travel, he could not guess that railroads would come only to be dispossessed, in their turn, by travel through the air and by explosive gas engines in automobiles.

THE DIESEL ENGINE threatens power companies, promises a solution of the air problem, and a new, better, cheaper automobile engine, with an electric ignition. It will give to the distant farmer and the little householder cheap electricity for light and power, with no payment for running power lines long distances.

DIESEL ENGINES, while waiting for something better to be invented, will take passengers through the air to Europe or across the continent for $25 each, or less. They may gladden the heart of the oil industry, creating such a market for oil as will make the present gasoline market seem trivial.

LONG AGO, when the thoughtless were putting glass on the roads to puncture the first automobile tires, they were urged by this writer to refrain, on the ground that, some day, cheap automobiles made by the millions every year, would be used by men going to their work.

That writing was used as evidence, in court, to establish the value of Ford Company stock as of 1913, for income tax purposes. This observer wishes to prophesy now improved engines will make human beings independent of power companies.

THE PRINCE OF WALES' entourage in South America is amazed to find Montevideo more interested in the Argentine prize fighter Suarez than in the Prince and his brother. Huge crowds followed the fighter, only a few showed interest in the princes.

Nine Montevideo newspapers devoted ten pages to the fighter, only two and a half to British royalty. Only two newspapers put the princes on the front page, and two of them never mentioned the Prince, one of the two giving three full pages to the fighter.

WHEN THE princes' grandfather, later King Edward, then Prince of Wales, met our John L. Sullivan in London at a boxing exhibition, this writer, present, observed no doubt in Sullivan's mind as to which was the great man. Sullivan said to the prince:

"I hear you have been in America. If you ever come again, you want to ask for me."

WHEN INTRODUCED to the prince, Sullivan, extending a big hand, said affably:

"Pleased to meet you, often heard of you."

That was his formula when meeting mayors of small American towns, devised to put them at ease. It was a great honor to have Sullivan say "often heard of you"

PRESENT WAS Jem Smith, heavyweight champion of England, in training to fight our Jake Kilrain. He was to give a boxing exhibition with old Alf Greenfield, and Sullivan to box with his partner, Jack Ashton.

Sullivan, at the American newspaper man's suggestion, made this suggestion to the Prince:

"You've got your champion heavyweight here, in training. I'm just off the boat, and fat. Tell him to get in that ring with me, and if I don't knock him out in three rounds, I'll go back to America."

Jem Smith's manager, with no meal money in sight, thought it would be a distressing spectacle for His Highness, and it probably would have been. The ring was only about 15 feet square, and in such a small ring no one could escape Sullivan.

Charles A. Dana was pleased with that story, which he had for his New York Sun exclusively. Britain's "low church" was scandalized to hear through an American newspaper of royalty at a fight. Now royalty goes as a matter of course.

GERMANY AND Austria want to arrange some sort of commercial agreement, profitable to both countries.

That might interfere with Briand's plan for a "United States of Europe."

It might also lead to political union between Germany and Austria There will be no United States of Europe. But, if France says no, it will mean no, because France has the flying machines, and what they say is the law.

HYMIE FAILS IN FIGHT TO STOP TRIAL

Judge Overrules Motion to Quash Indictment for Murder in Potter Case

CLEVELAND, March 23.—An attempt to have the murder indictment against "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin quashed on the grounds that he was "abducted" in Pittsburgh by Ohio authorities failed as the trial got under way here today.

The motion was made by Attorney Samuel Rosenberg, chief of defense counsel, at Martin's trial for the slaying of William E. Potter, ex-councilman. He charged that Martin was removed from Allegheny County Courthouse illegally before habeas corpus papers had been signed.

Judge McMahon overruled the motion, saying that he was satisfied Martin's removal was accomplished in a legal manner, as Pittsburgh authorities had not requested his return.

ROONEY BILL HELD UP IN HOUSE

Measure Pigeon-Holed by Committee; Musmanno's Plan Up for 2nd Reading

With the State Legislature scheduled to resume sessions at 9 o'clock tonight, these developments were reported from Harrisburg today:

1. The Rooney bill to make the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education elective was sidetracked in the House, with belief it would languish in committee and never be brought to a vote.

2. Gov. Pinchot announced his measure to replace the Public Service Commission with a Fair Rate Board would be introduced tonight.

3. The Musmanno coal and iron police bill was scheduled for second reading as its supporters continued their fight against efforts of the administration to have it killed.

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, March 23.—The Rooney bill which would abolish the present Pittsburgh Board of Public Education and make it elective has been "pickled," and possibly never will come out of committee.

It was learned today that Louis Hagmaier, of Aspinwal, lone member of the House Education Committee from Allegheny County, has asked the committee to keep it from appearing on the floor.

ONLY REQUEST

This, the only request made about the bill by an legislator, acording to Tom B. Wilson, chairman of the committee, was granted last week. Wilson said:

"The only one who approached me on the bill was Mr. Hagmaier, and unless others demand different action on the bill, it seems logical that we acknowledge his request. Of course, if a public hearing is asked, the committee undoubtedly would grant it."

M. A. Musmanno's coal police bill, supporters of which last week broke up the administration effort to have it committed to the Law and Order Committee, is scheduled to go before the House for second reading tonight.

Some administration leaders have hinted that unless Musmanno puts it on the postponed list tomorrow when it faces third reading, the administration will

Excessive Car Hire, Poor Inspection on Contracts Laid to Administration

Expenditure of large sums of money for automobile hire by city detectives came under the scrutiny of auditors investigating alleged irregularities in the Department of Supplies, it was learned today, as discovery of alleged "frauds" in sidewalk paving contracts furnished the probers with evidence for broadening the scope into other branches of the city government.

Two expense items held to be "excessive" in the city detective accounts have been uncovered, one for $375 and the other for $322. Inspector Frank Boyd, of the city detective bureau, said that the items were legitimate items of expense and had been incurred in making the arrest of two alleged bandit gangs wanted here for nearly half a hundred stickups. Inspector Boyd said the city detective bureaus' own automobiles at the time were in the shop.

NEW YORK TRIP

One squad of detectives went to New York, Inspector Boyd said, while another made arrests after a chase which led them to Erie and Buffalo.

What is reported as a glaring example of faulty construction not conforming to specifications is to be found in concrete sidewalk 4842-44 Second avenue.

It was revealed that the walk constructed last fall measured only 2½ inches to 3½ inches in depth. The job was passed by city inspectors despite the fact that the specifications provided for a depth of 5 inches over a 5-inch base of gravel, broken stone, clinkers or cinders.

The Garcia Construction Company, which entered a bid of 18.78 cents per square foot of sidewalk, was awarded the contract. The sidewalk fronts the property of Beni Stein, of Antrim street. Stein paid the city $61.13 for the new sidewalk.

WALK GIVES WAY

The faulty construction was revealed when excavation for a new building was started. A truck driven onto the sidewalk broke the concrete paving.

WALKER MUST MEET CHARGES

BULLETIN.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 23.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today called on Mayor James J. Walker, of New York City, to answer charges filed by the City Affairs Committee against him, charging malfeasance in office.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 23.—(INS.)—Gov. Roosevelt will take some action shortly on the charges filed with him by the city affairs committee demanding the removal of Mayor Walker, of New York City, for misfeasance and incompetency, it was indicated today at the capitol.

Close friends of the governor are convinced that he will send a copy of the charges to Mayor Walker and request that an answer be made at the earliest possible date. If this course is pursued, it was pointed out, it might mean that Roosevelt would not be forced to definitely dispose of the charges until after the Legislature has taken further action on the proposed legislative probe of New York City.

In the event that the Legislature should order an investigation of New York some of Roosevelt's advisors have pointed out the executive then would be in a position, if he desired, to hold that a separate investigation of Mayor Walker was not necessary, as it would be covered by the legislative probe.

PORTO RICANS HAIL HOOVER

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

PONCE, Porto Rico, March 23.—For the second time in its history, Porto Rico played host to a Chief Executive of the United States today as President Hoover embarked upon a program of receptions and inspections at the start of his 30-hour visit on the island.

The last President to pay such a visit was Theodore Roosevelt, whose son, the governor of Porto Rico, acted as official host to Mr. Hoover.

President Hoover disembarked from the U. S. Arizona shortly before 8 o'clock this morning, landing at the Ponce Quay with his party in small boats. Bedecked with flags and bunting, Ponce extended the hand of welcome to the visiting President, delegating its mayor, Emilio Fangot, to express the sentiments of the community.

CLYDE, STEEL LEADER, DIES

William G. Clyde, 63, former president of the Carnegie Steel Company and one of the best known steel executives in the Pittsburgh district, died at 2:15 o'clock this morning in his home, 1515 Beechwood boulevard. Last September he resigned as president of the Carnegie company, due to illness.

Clyde succeeded Homer D. Williams as president of the Carnegie Steel Company, and during his encumbency strove for efficiency in the organization until failing health forced his resignation.

Mr Clyde

Mr. Clyde was born July 29, 1868, in Chester, Pa., the son of John Edward and Emma Bertha Ott Clyde. He attended the public schools of Chester and later entered the Pennsylvania Military College, from which he was graduated with the class of 1888. First a civil engineer, he started his steel mill training with the Wellman Steel and Iron Company, Thurlow, Pa., where he was superintendent of the plate mills, subsequently going to the Illinois Steel Company, at South Chicago, in the

Battling Lewis a Fighter? So Is August Wilhelm

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

While Kid Dreiser was walloping Sinclair Battling Lewis, the Kaiser's son lost a decision in Germany.

The last of the Haphazardburgs ran into the police and was kicked for a round trip around an important building.

Like Dreiser and Lewis this was not an important war. You couldn't borrow money on it.

August Wilhelm just grappled with the coppers and finished number two. Way back in Holland the original Wilhelm had nothing to say about August Wilhelm.

When asked for a statement he said:

"Not now. I am waiting for August."

Whether he means the son or the month makes no difference.

BERLIN, March 23.—(AP.)—Eitel Friedrich, second son of the former Kaiser, goose-stepped through the Lustgarten yesterday with 5,000 "Steel Helmets," an organization of war veterans, agitating for a plebiscite to dissolve the Prussian Diet. Spectators cheered wildly. Maj. Von Stephani, a leader of the organization, declared the Steel Helmet protest was not directed against the Diet itself, but against the system on which it works.

KLINE'S AWAY; WHERE? SECRET

Where is Mayor Kline?

Nobody else seems to know.

The Mayor disappeared Saturday, with Mrs. Kline. When he'll return, Swaney refuses to reveal. Nobody knows whether he'll be back Wednesday for Council's hearing of former Controller Henry Oliver Evans' charges that the Department of Public Works is poorly managed.

A telephone call to the Mayor's cottage at Madison Lakelands, O., where he spends many week-ends, revealed that his 'phone had not yet been connected.

Schumann-Heink Here; 'Wants to Die on Stage'

Mme. Schumann-Heink came to town today with Roxy and His Gang, feeling, as she said, younger every day, although she is 70, and describing just how she wanted to pass from this world. She said:

"I want to drop dead backstage, working . . . Why should I stop singing? I don't get tired. It's my life."

Hugs and kisses were the rewards of the dozen members of the Disabled Veterans of the World War who met her and her special train at East Liberty. Commander Jack S. Carroll presented her a boquet of roses and heard her exclaim, enthusiastically:

"The happiest time of my life was during the war when I could help the soldier boys. The second happiest time is now, when I can help the crippled children the Shriners take care of."

The arduous itinerary of her present concert tour has made the famed singer happier. After playing 60 towns and cities, mostly one-night stands, she feels she's getting younger every day.

Schumann-Heink, with Roxy and the gang of 80, is giving a concert here tonight.

Tolstoy's Daughter Defies Soviet Order to Return

TOKIO, Japan, March 23.—(By the Canadian Press)—Mlle. Alexandra Tolstoy, daughter of the Russian novelist Count Leo Tolstoy, who has repeatedly sought permission from the Canadian government to enter the Dominion, says now that she has been ordered by the Soviet government to return to Russia. She said:

"Though I have received an order from the Soviet government to go back to Russia, I have no intention whatever of doing so. The Soviet government is oppressing primary school education of the Yasvana Plyana system, so cherished by my father and is permitting terrorism against religion, dear to my father and myself. I have accepted an invitation from the Doukhobors in Canada to go there and edit their newspapers and I hope to spend the rest of my life in Canada."

Mlle. Tolstoy has not yet received from the Canadian government the permit to enter the Dominion for which she has applied, the obstacle to which is her inability to produce a passport from Russia or to proceed direct from that country to Canada, as the Dominion laws require.

The Canadian Doukhobors, of Russian ancestry, who want the great count's daughter in their midst, emigrated to Canada under his benediction, and were materially helped by money he received from the sale of his work "Resurrection."

Mlle. Tolstoy also has started negotiations with the metropolitan police of Tokio to aid her, with a certificate of good conduct, in obtaining permission to enter Canada.

First Photographers to Reach Disaster Scene Crippled as Skis Break

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 23.—(AP.)—The rescue steamer Sagona, with 118 survivors of the sealer Viking explosion disaster on board, today forced its way through almost impenetrable ice floes off Horse Island on the return voyage to this port. Other vessels with nine survivors on board were likewise engaged.

While the ships with the survivors started out of the ice fields, the ocean-going tug Foundation Franklin arrived here with the body of Patrick Bartlett, one of the disaster victims.

Bob Fogg, Concord (N. H.) pilot, who flew north with a cameraman in quest of pictures of the disaster, damaged his machine landing on Horse Island, but neither Fogg nor his companion was injured.

RESUME FLIGHT

The plane piloted by Fogg was disabled when attempting to land near the scene of the Viking disaster. The skis on which the plane was mounted broke when they came in contact with the ice floes.

Fogg and his companion, Cameraman Wright of the Paramount News, arrived over Horse Island this morning—the first news photographers to reach the place where the Viking was destroyed by an explosion a week ago. They made pictures of ships that rescued more than a hundred survivors and pictures of the islands.

SKIS BROKE

Their trouble developed when, in attempting to land on the ice floes, their skis broke. They said they were unable to make repairs.

Meanwhile Bernt Balchen, internationally known flier, with his companions, Randy Enslow and Merion Cooper, prepared for the next leg of their flight at Corner Brook. The Balchen party, organized by Dr. Lewis Frissell, father of Varrick Frissell, one of the Americans who were on board the Viking, will search for Frissell, A. G. Penrod, another American, and 24 others who have not been found. Frissell and Penrod were motion picture men, engaged in obtaining pictures of the sealing fleet's activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Shaw McKean, of Boston, the latter a sister of Harry Sargent, explorer, the other Americans aboard the Viking, arrived here today. They came to greet Sargent, a survivor, when he reaches port. He was not injured seriously.

West Va. Gas Rate Discussed at Meet

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 23.—(AP.)—Attorneys in the United Fuel gas rate case today conferred informally with the Public Service Commission as to the rate effective under a decision of the State Supreme Court setting aside new rates granted the gas company in December.

Counsel for the cities of Huntington, Charleston and Williamson, protestants to the rate increase, contended that the rate effective when the gas company filed its application for a rate change should be restored.

Lake Yields Body Of Drowned Sailor

ERIE, Pa., March 23.—(AP.)—The body of a man, believed a seaman on the lakes steamer Whalen, which went down in Lake Erie off Dunkirk, N. Y., several months ago, has been recovered. There were no marks of identification. The body apparently had been in the water for some time. Sixteen men were lost in the sinking of the Whalen.

day promised Stein that the defective sidewalk would be replaced. In a letter to Stein, Lang said:

"If the public would only bring matters such as yours to our attention they would help us to eliminate these shortcomings and strengthen the many weaknesses present in the department that we are anxious to improve and place on a higher business plane."

Lang said the contractor would be asked to rebuild the faulty walk. He said a number of inspectors had been dismissed for passing work not up to specifications.

The sidewalk disclosures were made following the charges of Henry Oliver Evans of many alleged irregularities in the Department of Public Works. Evans charges, formally presented to City Council several days ago, will be aired at a public hearing beginning Wednesday.

SEEK MISSING RECORDS

An intensive search for the records missing from the office of Controller James P. Kerr was under way this morning. The records upon which names, date and time bids for various city supplies were made were reported missing Saturday after M. C. Conick, of Main & Co., had made repeated requests for them.

The Citizens Committee intends to continue its investigation as long as funds are available, it was learned this morning. They intend to broaden the probe into other city departments, it was said, upon the completion of the present scrutiny of the supplies department. It was reported that the Department of Public Works would be the next to face the quiz.

DELAY APPEAL IN PRISON FAKE

ERIE, Pa., March 23.—(AP.)—Counsel for Attorney S. V. Rossiter, Joseph Donovan, Erie automobile dealer, and Lester Beals, Donovan's brother-in-law, convicted Saturday by a jury in United States Court here in connection with the substitution of a prisoner in a liquor smuggling case, indicated today that it would not rush a plea for a new trial.

The defendants have four days in which to file an appeal and it was said this morning, following a conference of the defense counsel, that they would not act until later in the week. Judge Nelson McVicar, before whom the trio was tried, is delaying sentence pending the motion for a new trial.

Rossiter and Donovan were convicted on all six counts of the indictment against them, and Beals on three counts. They are subject to fines up to $40,000 and nine years imprisonment or both in the case of Rossiter and Donovan, and $30,000 or six years or both for Beals.

RADICALS ASK EXTRA SESSION

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP.)—A program designed to force an extra session of Congress to deal with economic distress was adopted today at a conference of representatives of various reform organizations, peace societies and the National Socialist party.

Delegates to the conference, headed by Norman Thomas, former Socialist candidate for president, immediately began a series of conferences with political leaders demanding the extra session.

They called first on Senate Republican leader Watson. He told them he did not believe the situation had reached a point where an extra session was necessary. Watson promised, however, to talk the situation over with President Hoover on his return from his Caribbean cruise.

The program adopted by the conference provided also for appeals to Speaker Longworth, of the House, and the chairmen of the national committees of the two major political parties.

PREACHER KILLS SELF AT GRAVE

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., March 23.—(AP.)—Frank B. Smith, 58, office deputy sheriff of Wetzel County, was found dead today on the grave of his daughter, who died four years ago. He was an ordained minister of the Church of Christ and preached at the church here last night.

On Smith's body was a note addressed to the Wetzel County Court directing that any salary due him be paid to his widow. A two-ounce bottle that bore an acid label was found near the grave, but the coroner said there was no odor or burns of the acid on the body.

Smith complained after his sermon last night that he was not feeling well. He had been dead but a short time when he was found this morning. He leaves his widow and four sons.

PRIEST ATTACKS BIRTH CONTROL AS 'PAGAN'

Father Coughlin Scores Federal Church Council; Quotes Bible Opposition

DETROIT, March 23.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Charels E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, last night attacked the report favoring birth control, announced by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America as a "surrender" to the "ideals of paganism," and a "betrayal" to "the god of political economy."

In a radio address broadcast over the nation-wide hookup of the Columbia Broadcasting system, the militant priest attacked the thesis of Malthus that population tends to increase more rapidly than means of sustenance.

CELESTIAL LIMITATION

Pointing out that in the past "population was limited as Almighty God saw fit to limit it by war and pestilence and disease and the marriage customs and the fecundity of his peoples," he said:

"This question of birth control is nothing new in the annals of sociology or of civilization. It is hundreds of years older than the Federal Council of Churches in America. It was born not because of a great moral issue but because of a matter of dollars and cents. Originally it was an economic issue. Its whole history has been tied up with the socalled science of polical economy, and today it still is an economic issue."

FORBIDDEN IN BIBLE

Father Coughlin quoted from thirty-eighth chapter of Genesis, eighth verse, the story of Onan, "The Biblical founder of birth control" to show that the practice is forbidden in the Scriptures. He added:

"So far as the Catholic Church is concerned, we adhere to the principle that the sacrament of matrimony was not instituted by man, but by God; that the laws made to strengthen and to confirm and to elevate it are not of man's devisal, and that the nature of matrimony is entirely independent of the free will of man as much as is the law of sunrise and of sunset."

NOT DRY HERE, SAYS PRIEST

DETROIT, March 23.—(INS.)—Asserting that "we certainly don't have prohibition in Pittsburgh and I know you don't have it here," the Rev. James Delaney, of Pittsburgh, today had challenged the dry law in an address here before a meeting of 3,500 Catholics. The priest said:

"I have yet to take my first drink of liquor, but if I do, it is nobody's business but my own."

Father Delaney declared that most American cities were "wringing wet" and that prohibition was rapidly nullifying the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

motion. The jury is not expected to be completed before Wednesday. Miss Helen Vilas was the first of the venire of 75 prospective jurors called.

The trial started without any known reason as to a motive for the killing. Despite the lack of motive, Prosecutor Miller said he was prepared to ask the death penalty.

A new alibi, denying that offered by two Pittsburgh men and by his own sweetheart, will be Martin's defense.

Lou Frischman, Pittsburgh haberdasher, and his clerk, Bernard Schaecter, have sworn Martin was in their store the night of February 3, when Potter was shot down in a Cleveland apartment. Similarly, Mrs. Mary Outland Woodfield, •Martin's sweetheart, "Akron Mary," has insisted Martin was with her in Dormont, Pittsburgh suburb, that night. Defense notice of an alibi, served in accordance with Ohio law, says Martin will swear instead that he was in an Akron hotel at the time Potter was slain.

Assistant Prosecutor John A. Fitzmartin said he would confer with Pittsburgh authorities as to whether to bring perjury charges against Frischman and Schaecter.

Approximately 30 state witnesses have been summoned, among them Mrs. Bety Gray, who has been secreted for some time. It was Mrs. Gray who said she saw Martin in the murder apartment building and who furnished information which led to his arrest in Pittsburgh.

Other stae witnesses will include Fred C. Laub, who rented the suite to "Markus," residents who heard the shot fired, and Mrs. Laub, who discovered the body six days after the slaying. A "mystery witness" will be Mrs. Myrta McCurdy, of Beaver Falls, Pa., a sister of Laub. It was learned Laub visited her after the murder while settling the estate of a relative.

Mrs. Dernis alleges that the company was negligent in permitting a coach to be operated by a driver under the influence of liquor.

TESTS UNDER WATER FOR NAUTILUS

By LIEUT.-COMMANDER SLOAN DANENHOWER

Former U. S. Navy submarine officer, now commanding Nautilus, in which the Wilkins-Ellsworth trans-Arctic submarine expedition will seek to cross the Arctic Ocean.

ABOARD THE NAUTILUS, off Quarantine, New York, March 23.—This iron whale of ours is some seaboat. When we hauled up from Scotland Light today, she took a couple of flops that fetched us up all standing.

She was rolling about 20 degrees in a nice easy roll showing that the result of the relining experiment was correct and that she is seaworthy.

BATTERY CHARGED

There is nothing much to report except that the gang battled through the night charging the battery, pumping bilges and the ordinary routine. The new work has to be touched up here and there but there is nothing serious. All in all, we consider her a proper seaboat and about ready for her long trip across the Atlantic Ocean with the Polar dip at the end.

The captain and crew are satisfied with her on the surface and now it's up to us to do the same submerged; put her down 200 feet, standardize her and be on our way for ice trials at Halifax.

The Nautilus will be christened here Tuesday by Jean Jules Verne, grandson of the famous Jules Verne, assisted by Lady Suzanne Wilkins, wife of Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, chief of the expedition.

Quartermaster's Death Lends Touch of Tragedy

NEW YORK, March 23.—(INS.)—Tragedy hung over Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar-bound submarine, the Nautilus, today. Willard L. Grimmer, 27, of Philadelphia, the craft's quartermaster, fell overboard and was drowned yesterday as the undersea craft entered New York Harbor.

During a high wind and choppy sea, Grimmer was plunged from a railing on the submarine after he lost his footing. Seaplanes and patrol boats searched the water for his body but it was not recovered.

At the time the Nautilus was being towed here from the Delaware River. The submarine was cut loose from its tug and aided in the search for Grimmer. Sir Hubert was not on board the Nautilus.

CRAFT TIED UP

On account of the delay the craft was tied up at Staten Island and was brought to Brooklyn today.

No definite plans have been made for the submarine's departure across the Atlantic, but the start will probably be made about the middle of April. From here the submarine will head for Halifax.

Grimmer, a former Navy man and radio expert, was married two weeks ago in Philadelphia to Miss Mary Fountain, 21.

Coolidge Condemns Trade Barriers for Retaliation

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 23.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Now that the proposed European tariff truce has been voluntarily abandoned it is possible to discuss it with more freedom in the United States. Some claim was made that it was inspired by an intention to erect continental tariff barriers for the purpose of encouraging trade among themselves and discouraging trade with our country. Some looked on it as beginning an offensive and defensive alliance against goods produced here.

Mr. Coolidge

Probably that was not correct. European nations are small in territory and contiguous like our own states. Whatever they could do to encourage commerce with each other by limiting or removing unnecessary restrictions ought to be looked on with favor by us. We want Europe prosperous. But a trade alliance of one section of the world against another section is of the same essence as a military alliance. It would be a source of irritation and suspicion.

Such tariff rates as are necessary for the protection of domestic industry are proper and friendly. But retaliation, and tariffs or agreements for the main purpose of injuring the trade of another country, are not wise. Europe needs our trade more than we need hers.

Private Wealth in U. S. Set At $2,977 Per Person

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP.)—Your Uncle Sam has taken on a little more financial avoirdupois since you last heard from him.

Instead of being worth a mere $320,800,000,000 as in 1922, he is the happy possessor, as of 1929, of the tidy sum of $361,800,000,000.

Of course that does not include his silver and gold bullion and coin, value of naval ships, privately owned water supplies or other such odds and ends, because they cannot be allocated to states and split up 48 ways for per capita purposes.

And as for per capita—that is, you and I—each of us has the neat private fortune of $2,977 to our credit, which we earned and put away—statistically—in the old stone jug on our average income of $692 a year.

The term national wealth represents tangible physical assets only. In case you live in Nevada, just hold your first place with per capita wealth of $6,318. But if in Mississippi bring up at the rear with only $1,242 to the individual.

According to the report, each Pennsylvanian is worth $3,425; those in Ohio are rated at $3,250, and the West Virginian's share is $3,143.

TWO HELD OVER HARVARD LARK

BOSTON, March 23.—(INS.)—Pleading not guilty to a federal complaint alleging the theft of a street mail box, two Harvard students—John D. Evans, 22, of Pittsburgh, and Leonard F. Dean, 21, of Three Rivers, Mich.—this afternoon were held by United States Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney in $500 bonds each for a hearing on April 15.

Bail was furnished by a surety company. Judge Edward S. Ounihan, of Cambridge, represented both students. From Cambridge came word that no action will be taken by college authorities until the cases have been settled in court.

The students did not discuss the charges, but Cambridge police and federal officers said the students had apparently pushed against a mail box, which was loose on its fastenings, and that it fell to the sidewalk. The authorities emphasized that no theft of mail was involved in the case. The affair was regarded as an incident to a student lark.

CROWN QUEEN, KING AT PITT

Miss Adelaide Hunter, of Dormont, and Ralph W. Harkins, of Homestead, were unofficially crowned King and Queen of Popularity on the University of Pittsburgh campus this morning.

The winners, "dark horses" in the annual popularity contest conducted by the Pitt Weekly and the Pitt Panther were declared "in" today, by a slim majority of the 4,500 votes cast.

The closest rivals were Miss Patty McLean and Martin Fallon, who held the lead for several days.

Two Lose Appeal In Veteran Bribery

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today denied the petitions of John F. L. O'Leary, former regional adjudication officer of the Veterans' Bureau at Milwaukee, and Henry J. Sullivan, Milwaukee attorney, for review of their conviction on a charge of conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States. Sullivan was charged with giving and O'Leary with agreeing to take, a bribe. Each was sentenced to a year in prison and fined $500.

Two Suspects Held In East End Robbery

William Abbott, 17, and Harry Walker, 30, of 3432 Forbes street, arrested after Abbott was found in the rear of a Denniston avenue home with a flashlight early Wednesday, were turned over to detectives today for investigation. H. W. Loos, of 5398 Wilkins avenue, vice president of the Pittsburgh Peoples Trust Company, identified a watch found in their room as the one taken from his home two weeks ago.

LOEB, LEOPOLD FACE RIOT QUIZ

JOLIET, Ill., March 23.—(INS.)—The legislative investigation of conditions in the riot-torn state penitentiaries here went forward today with several veteran inmates scheduled to add their testimony to sensational charges that the shooting of three escaping convicts was "murder."

Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, serving life terms for the "thrill murder" of young Bobby Franks, were among the convicts to be heard.

Heavily-armed National Guard troops and state police who restored order after Wednesday's rioting that resulted in seven buildings being burned still patrolled the prison grounds today.

Prisoners have charged that penitentiary authorities deliberately allowed the Washington's birthday escape plot to proceed only to shoot down the three convict fugitives.

One convict—Harvey Rogers, of Chicago — created a sensation when he told the legislators that Guard Capt. B. A. Davenport is a marked man because the inmates believe he had much to do with the shooting of the trio of convicts. Rogers predicted Davenport would be killed before long.

WENDEL RICHES GO TO CHARITY

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP.)—Sale of realty holdings approximating $100,000,000 is ordered in the will of Miss Ella Wendel, last of the famous old New York family. After certain specific bequests, the bulk of the estate is to be divided into 200 parts, which are to go in varying proportions to hospitals, church mission societies and other charities.

The Wendel family home at Fifth avenue and Thirty-ninth street is bequeathed to Drew Theological Seminary "as a memorial to the decendent's father, the late John D. Wendel."

Four beneficiaries receive 35 shares each of the residuary estate. They are the Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.; St. Christopher's Home for Children, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; New York Society for the Relief of Ruptured and Crippled; Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for the Nanking Theological Seminary at Nanking, China, and the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital, "exclusively for the Flower Hospital."

There was no mention in the will of Miss Wendel's poodle, "Tobey," last of a long line of pets of that name. The dog, which is old, probably will be cared for by friends.

OHIO JURY SIFTS PRISON FIRE

COLUMBUS, O., March 23.—(AP.)—The Franklin County grand jury today began an investigation of the Ohio Penitentiary fire that claimed the lives of 320 convicts last April 21. Prosecutor Donald J. Hoskins said the inquiry would require several days.

Witnesses will include Joseph D. Clear, of the state fire marshal's office, and Warden Preston E. Thomas, Hoskins said.

Clear, who made an exhaustive inquiry for the state, has advanced the theory that the blaze was started by prisoners who planned to escape during the ensuing confusion.

Rich Indian Girl Again Sued For Balm

MUEKOGEE, Okla., March 23.—(AP.)—Exie Fife, Creek Indian girl, who has been the target of litigation since she became wealthy from oil, appeared in court today to defend another alienation of affections suit.

Mrs. Hattie Adair charges the Indian girl stole the affections of her husband, Jess Adair, Muskogee policeman, and demands $105,000 damages.

Miss Fife several years ago paid Mrs. Ollie Carr $2,500 to settle an alienation suit. In 1928 she was sued for $200,000 by Leona McIntosh on a similar complaint. The girl, now about 25 years old, charged the McIntosh suit was a conspiracy.

AUSTRIA-BERLIN PACT ALARMS

BERLIN, March 23.—(AP.)—Government officials in Germany and Austria were busy today answering inquries of representatives of other European countries about the proposed Austro-German customs accord.

Delegations were received by Prime Minister Schober at Vienna and by Foreign Minister Curtius at Berlin. The principal cause for concern given by representatives of other European nations was the possibility that the proposed new accord might be a violation of Austria's independence and contrary to the provisions of post-war treaties and the Geneva protocol.

In Berlin it was said that German and Austrian legal experts were agreed that it would be shown that the new accord violated no existing treaty. In Paris, Aristide Briand had started a movement which was approved by the French cabinet to determine whether the accord threatened the independence of Austria.

INDICT SUSPECT IN ZEP PLOT

AKRON, O., March 23.—(AP.)—Paul F. Kassay, 37, Goodyear Zeppelin employe, who is alleged to have made a remark which showed he intended to commit sabotage against the giant Navy Zeppelin Akron, was indicted by the Summit County grand jury today on a charge of violating the tate criminal syndicalism law.

Although denying that he was a member of their party, Communists rallied today to the defense of Kassay.

Miss Jennie Cooper, of Cleveland, district organizer of the International Labor Defense Committee, said she would come here to post a $40,000 property security to obtain Kassay's release under $20,000 bond. Kassay's arrest, she said, was a "well-organized plan to discredit the Communist party."

Demonstrations will be held in Cleveland, Youngstown, Toledo, Akron and other Ohio cities to "arouse sympathy in behalf of Kassay," Miss Cooper said.

W-J PRESIDENT SEES STRIKERS

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 23.—Dr. Simon S. Baker, president of Washington and Jefferson College, conferred for more than an hour this morning with representatives of students who went on strike last Wednesday morning, demanding his resignation. The conference broke up at noon. A second conference will be held probably tomorrow, it was stated at Dr. Baker's office.

The strike, in which the entire student body, numbering more than 400, took part, ended this morning.

The petition charging Dr. Baker with being an autocrat and a czar, discriminatory in his attitude toward students and inefficiency in the administration of the college, was the subject of this morning's parley, it was understood. The petition, which has been signed by more than 350 of the students, will be acted upon by the board of trustees at its meeting Wednesday in Pittsburgh.

LINGLE MURDER JURY PICKED

CHICAGO, March 23.—(INS.)—The jury which will decide the guilt or innocence of Leo V. Brothers, charged with the murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune underworld reporter, was completed today.

The jury was taken out while attorneys wrangled over points of law. No session was to be held this afternoon. Opening arguments were set for tomorrow.

As the last veniremen were questioned, the prosecution indicated that the question "Why was Jake Lingle killed?" may go unanswered because a Supreme Court ruling held that the state is not obliged to prove why a man was murdered.

Rafael Sabatini's Wife Gets Divorce

SCOUTS HONOR BOY HERO

Alex Mellon, 14-year-old Boy Scout, of Creighton, today learned that he is to be awarded a gold honor medal for saving a life.

Alex was at his classes in East Deer Township Junior High School in Creighton, when his scoutmaster, Herman Nolte, brought word that the National Court of Honor of the Boy Scouts of America had announced, in New York that Alex was to be so honored for saving the life of 10-year-old Margaret Gornall, of Creighton.

Alex is only the eighth Boy Scout to be cited for a gold medal.

Margaret, a pupil in the same school building, was playing in the Allegheny River last summer and ventured beyond her depth.

Alex heard her cries, dove in and not only rescued her, but revived her by artificial respiration.

The only scout in Allegheny County chosen for the medal, he will be recognized at a court of honor in the school building, April 10.

Mother, Girls Slain For Ridiculing Reds

FORT FRANCES, Ont., March 23.—(AP.)—Enraged by criticism of Communism, of which he was an ardent supporter, Antanzy Usciski today stabbed to death his sister-in-law, Mrs. Nick Straycka, 38, her two daughters, Olga, 19, and Ellen, 8, and wounded her 14-year-old son.

"We have achieved well-nigh a miracle of unrepresentative government."

Speaking before the University of California on its charter day, Dr. Butler said party organization and responsibility had disappeared.

"An interested, intelligent and informed electorate, which returns to the ideals of liberty of the country's fathers" is necessary, he warned, to prevent the political organization of the country from giving way to a new form, such as Fascism or Communism. He declared:

"Political indifference far outruns political participation."

Lewis Good Fellow, Fight All Over, Says Dreiser

KANSAS CITY, March 23.—(AP.)—Theodore Dreiser has turned from the role of "the man who slapped Sinclair Lewis."

The author of "An American Tragedy," here last night, renounced any intentions of further combat with the red-headed Nobel prize winner and said he was "really a good fellow."

Referring to his slapping of Lewis at a gathering of New York literati Thursday night, Dreiser said:

"I couldn't sit there and swallow his insults. I don't like being cursed and accused of plagiarism. I've answered that charge enough."

Asked if Lewis didn't turn the other cheek to receive the second blow, the novelist commented:

"If I remember rightly it was the same cheek I slapped both times.

"But that affair is closed. Lewis has a reputation for being offensive. I like Lewis and believe Lewis likes me.

"I admire some of his writings. Even 'Elmer Gantry' is a pretty good story, although it is a bit raw. 'Arrowsmith' is a good story, too. Paul De Kruif, who gave Lewis the material, first asked me to write the book, but I didn't have time."

ROONEY'S BILL SIDETRACKED

do its utmost to kill it outright. Musmanno and labor leaders have been absolutely firm against the Governor's plan of corporation-paid state police. They have seen no reason to delay action because of the Governor's second conference on coal police legislation, set for Friday.

BLUE LAW BILL UP

Musmanno's blue law local option bill is expected out of committee Wednesday with an unfavorable report. Taking 105 votes to place it on the calendar, it will to that extent provide a test vote of those who want to see the bill get a chance and those who wish it killed.

The bill provides for each community to decide whether it wants blue laws repealed.

Musmanno also will get a public hearing Tuesday on his bill to exclude certain minors, notably the radio singer, "Rosemarie," from the restrictions of the labor laws.

While a number of administration bills are expected this week, the paramount question has become over the week-end congressional reapportionment.

Already groups are discussing from what localities the two congressmen will be squeezed, and it seems agreed that the four from the "Shoe-Strap Belt," McKean, Lycoming, Potter and adjacent counties, would be cut to two.

While State senate and House reapportionment are also slated, a number of representatives believe no changes will result. Allegheny County would, if reapportionment was made, get an additional state senator. An attempt to clip Senator Clarence Buckman, Grundy leader from Bucks County, is meeting serious opposition and, it is expected, may be halted.

Prisoner Locks Police Chief In Jail

PADEN CITY, W. Va., March 23.—(AP.)—Police Chief C. H. Mayfield knows how it feels to be inside the bars looking out. He was locked up in his own jail for an hour Saturday night while an erstwhile prisoner fled.

Mayfield was disarmed by John Heedy, who was to have been tried today on a non-support charge. The chief suffered fractured ribs when the prisoner attacked him, he said. Heedy has not been captured.

OLIVER FIGHTS ROONEY BILL

David B. Oliver, whose service as a school director dates back to 1872, is opposed to the Rooney bill, which would abolish the present Pittsburgh School Board and institute a paid board. He said:

"After long and careful consideration the school code as it now stands was framed and established. The members of the Board of Education are appointed to serve without salary by the judges of the courts. This method lifted the school system out of local politics and has proved entirely satisfactory. I see no good reason for changing."

Oliver has served as a member of the Pittsburgh board since 1911 and is an ex-officio member of all the standing committees of the board.

AID MUSMANNO ON POLICE BILL

The fight of Representative Michael A. Musmanno to protect his industrial police bill from being delayed or sidetracked in the House before it comes to a vote has been given the support of many religious, civic and labor groups as well as prominent citizens of the Pittsburgh district.

John M. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, and other labor leaders have issued a firm denial that organized labor would oppose the Musmanno measure. Phillips said the federation is for the Musmanno bill and has not declared itself otherwise.

Similar statements came from P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, of the United Mine Workers; Philip Murray, vice president, United Mine Workers of America, and Frank Hughes, international representative of the United Mine Workers of America.

Other leaders who have allied themselves with the Musmanno group include the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church; Attorney Ward Bonsall, Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, editor of the Christian Advocate; Mrs. Sidney L. Kaufman, Attorney Arthur M. Scully, president of the Allegheny County Bar Association; Dr. Mont R. Gabbert, professor of philosophy, University of Pittsburgh; Ernest Herklotz, president of the German Beneficial Union of Pittsburgh, and Maurice Scharff, president of the Civic Club of Allegheny County.

BERLIN, March 23.—(AP.)—Ted Shawn, the American dancer, and Marguerite Wallmann, who recently performed modern German dances in New York, were received enthusiastically here last night in the premier of "Orpheus Dionysos," described as a drama of motion. The piece is a version of the familiar Greek legend of Orpheus and Eurydice.

P. S. C. SCORED BY FATHER COX

Members of the Public Service Commission were criticized and condemned by the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church, in his sermon last night. Reporting on his recent observations at Harrisburg, Father Cox termed the commission a band of brothers working for the utilities companies of the state. He said:

"Members of the Public Service Commission came before the House Investigating Committee. The lack of knowledge on the part of some of them regarding the affairs of the commission was surprising. Office boys, as I told one of them, would have known more about their work.

"In my estimation most of these commissioners are simply 'rubber stamps' for the utilities companies.

"Thirty-five hundred reports are sent to the commission each year and there is a widespread feeling, based on facts, that unjust rates were charged by a large number of these companies, yet over a five-year period only eight companies were investigated on the initiative of the commission. They are a band of brothers working for the utilities companies of the state."

PINCHOT RATE BOARD BILL UP TONIGHT

Measure Abolishing Service Commission Scheduled For House Presentation

HARRISBURG, March 23.—Gov. Pinchot's bill to abolish the Public Service Commission and substitute in its place a fair rate board is to be introduced in the House tonight. The bill creates a fair rate board of seven members to be elected by districts. Allegheny County is made a separate district under the bill and entitled to elect a member to the board.

One important provision of the administration bill is to set cities, boroughs and districts in the state free to establish their own municipal plants for gas, electricity and water when they believe it to be in the interests of the citizens.

PINCHOT STATEMENT

Gov. Pinchot, in a prepared statement of five pages, outlined some of the salient features of the proposed bill to wipe out the present Public Service Commission.

The measure provides that one-half of all net profits earned by a public utility above 7 per cent and not above 8 per cent and all profits above 8 per cent shall be paid into the state treasury. The governor's statement said:

"This provision will go far to curb the unlawful desire of the utilities to charge unfairly high rates."

The bill was drafted by George W. Woodruff, former attorney general, and now attached to the Governor's office as special counsel in utility matters.

The present Public Service commissioners would be ripped out of office 30 days after the passage of the act. Employes of the commission are not affected, but would become attached to the fair rate board.

At the municipal election this fall fair rate board members would be named in the seven districts. The salary of the board members would be $10,000 a year and the chairman $10,500.

COUNTY DISTRICT

Allegheny County alone would make up District No. 5. The member from that district would be elected this fall for five years. When that short term is completed, the member would be chosen from then on for the full tenure of seven years.

District No. 6 would include Fayette, Greene, Washington, Beaver, Butler, Lawrence, Mercer, Venango, Crawford and Erie counties. In District No. 4 are Westmoreland, Indiana, Clearfield, Armstrong, Clarion and Jefferson counties.

The Governor's statement declares:

"The administration fair rate bill is based directly on the idea that a public service company dedicates itself by contract to the service of the public; that it is legally and morally wrong for a public utility to charge excessive rates or make excessive profits, and that the principle upon which all public service matters should be determined is the public good comes first.

"The bill puts squarely upon the whole Fair Rate Board and its entire organization the duty of protecting the interests of the people. It makes the Fair Rate Board the public defender, and does not leave the interests of the people to a people's counsel who would present such few cases as he could be for the Fair Rate Board as before a court, leaving the bulk of the public without protection.

FAIR RETURN BASIS

"The bill provides for basing rates and charges upon a fair return on the actual, legitimate, prudent capital investment by the utilities. A fair return on the money actually put into the business is what the utilities should have—no more and no less.

"The bill also provides for cutting down fixed charges to consumers, for cutting out complicated methods of determining rates and charges, and for reducing the spread between large and small users to the lowest practical minimum. As things stand now, the small users, who are least able to pay high prices per unit of service, actually pay the highest rates.

"As one method for getting fair rates for the people, the bill provides that one-half of all net profits earned by a public utility above 7 per cent and not above 8 per cent, and all profits above 8 per cent, shall be paid into the state Treasury. This provision will go far to curb the unlawful desire of the utilities to charge unfairly high rates.

"Another method of curbing unfair rates provided in the bill is to set cities, boroughs and districts in the state free to establish their own municipal plants for gas, electricity and water when they believe it will be to the interests of their citizens to do so."

CITY MANAGER BACKERS LEAVE

The vanguard of Pittsburgh's delegations en route to Harrisburg to urge passage of the city manager plan left this city by motor today, according to A. V. Snell, of the Allied Boards of Trade.

While the main body of champions for the new form of city government planned to leave here tomorrow morning at 7:10 a. m. from the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, several other delegations planned to leave for the state capital by motor today, Snell said. Representatives from between 50 and 60 civic organizations are expected to attend the hearing, which is to be held in the House of Representatives tomorrow.

Representatives from the Beechview Civic Club, planning to confer with Gov. Pinchot upon Senator Coyne's bill increasing the number of judges in Allegheny County, were among the early departures. They plan to attend the city manager plan hearing after their conference with Gov. Pinchot.

GERMAN ENVOY ASKS PEACE AID

HARRISBURG, March 23.—(INS.)—International co-operation to solve the problems of depression and peace was advocated by Dr. F. W. Von Prittwitz, German ambassador to the United States, in a speech before the Rotary Club today.

Germany, he said, wants peace and is anxious to co-operate for further international reduction in arms and to supplant rivalry in trade with co-operation.

He suggested that "a more adequate distribution of international funds, together with a decline of the rates of interest, would indeed seem to be one of the most essential prerequisites for normalization."

Germany, he said, though suffering from after-effect of the war and a staggering reparations burden, will continue "in our efforts to fulfill our national obligations regularly and punctually."

PUBLIC WORK AWARDS GAIN

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP.)—During the first week of spring, public work contracts swelled to 145,292,508, the largest total yet reported to the President's employment committee.

At the same time, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported construction totaling $100,311,856 had been authorized in 342 cities during February. This was a decrease of 2.5 per cent from January permits of $102,878,087, but the decrease was less than the 4.3 per cent for the same period last year.

The estimated cost of new dwelling property authorized in February totaled $37,269,786 for 8,801 residences as compared with $37,888,756 for 8,537 residences in January. For new non-residential property it was $46,295,949 compared with $45,883,680.

PROGRAM.
Trio in C Minor.....Brahms
Trio in A Minor.....Ravel
Trio in G Minor.....Smetana

The extreme popularity of the Compinsky Trio brought this ensemble back for a more dignified program at the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association last night. Three trios of very diverse styles and nationalities incidentally of excellent music were a little heavy for the audience, but made a most satisfactory concert.

Mr. Lissfelt

At their last appearance the spasmodic character of the program gave little opportunity for judging the trio at its best. Last night's music was a harder test, and the players seemed to approach all their music in about the same spirit, making little distinction from the rugged Brahms, the more delicate and piquant Ravel, to Smetana's impassioned Slav tunes. The pianist is mostly at fault for this condition, which, however, is never serious enough to mar the entertaining quality of their music.

Which came first... the chicken or the egg?

FLAVOR in eggs depends upon more than freshness. It goes back to the old question, "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" For the sake of this argument let's say the chicken came first. Because, if there was no chicken, where would be the egg that we are talking about? In all seriousness, the food of the chicken that lays the egg—the way the chicken is housed, has much to do with the flavor of the egg. McCann's Egg Producers are experts in their line—employing the last word in sanitary housing and feeding. Nutritionists tell us that eggs are a splendid source of Vitamin A—the growth vitamin. Physicians order eggs for young babies, for invalids. So they must be readily digestible.

Connoisseurs order them for "drinks"—eggnogs, egg milk shake, chocolate milk shake and what-have you. The fresh delicate flavor of McCann's eggs make them the choice of discriminating Pittsburghers for any and every use.

GIRL EXPOSES DOPE RING

By WILLIAM MILLMAN

BERLIN, March 23.—(Universal Service.)—A slender, pretty girl, educated in a St. Louis convent, has revealed how, lured by promises of marriage, she accompanied a bogus Russian count from New York to Berlin only to become involved in a gang which, she alleges, was engaged in smuggling dope and counterfeit money into the United States.

The girl, Eugenia Jeanne Mourey, 18, was in the company of Boris Dobreczinski, 25, when the latter was arrested Saturday, charged with passing worthless checks on American banks.

Now penniless, Miss Mourey yesterday described her "fantastic adventure, with alleged drug smugglers and forgers. She said:

"I came to Europe expecting to marry Boris. During my stay I was introduced to a number of Russians posing as counts and aristocrats, in reality cocaine smugglers and counterfeiters making a specialty of smuggling forged dollar notes into the United States."

NEW YORK, March 23.—(Universal.)—A New York attorney named by Boris Dobreczinski last night characterized the prisoner's dope-smuggling story as "a figment of his imagination."

QUITS AS MAID TO BE BANDIT

DETROIT, March 23.—(AP.)—Sally Scott, who is 18 years old, and has a demure manner, today calmly—almost nonchalantly—told police about how she gave up being a nursemaid last Friday to adopt banditry as a profession.

She related her three holdups in one of which she did some shooting, and apologized for getting caught after the last one. She said:

"I never would have been caught if I had had a little experience. I didn't know police headquarters was so near, and I didn't realize the police could get over where I was so quickly."

The girl said she wanted more money than she earned as nursemaid and had not the education to be a "stenographer or bookkeeper," so she borrowed a pistol, and on Friday night held up a drug store, getting $25. Yesterday she held up another drug store and a restaurant.

EXPECT ROPER IN MAYOR RACE

READING, Pa., March 23.—(INS.)—Councilman William W. (Bill) Roper, of Philadelphia, "undoubtedly has the mayoralty bee in his bonnet," it was declared in the report of the Sabbath committee to the one hundred forty-fourth annual conference of the Philadelphia district of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which concluded its sessions here today.

Roper's alleged ambitions to be mayor were given as the reason for his attacks on the so-called Sunday Blue Laws. The delegates were warned to combat these opponents of the present laws and told that "never in the history of the commonwealth has there been such a concerted and determined effort for the repeal of the Act of 1794 as at present."

Real Estate

The leasing of a storeroom at West Liberty and Potomac avenues, Dormont, to the May Drug Company, by George Brothers through the offices of Mackintosh & Golden, was announced today. The lease is for a term of years, according to the brokers. The property is owned by Dr. John F. Golden.

A. F. Sheldon, special advertising representative of the Chase Brass Company, will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board tomorrow in the William Penn Hotel. His subject will be "Copper Water Tubing and Its Uses." Sheldon will illustrate the talk with motion pictures.

As proof of the up-trend in building the National Builders Supply Association calls attention to the increased volume of business being done by the National Steel Fabric Company, a local organization. Shipments of the company's product, Ribbed Steeltex lath, in January of this year totaled 88.9 per cent more than those of January, 1930.

Arthur F. Texter, broker, has sold a nine-room brick home with two baths on 50x150 feet in Maple avenue, Edgewood, for T. M. Scott. This property was listed at $24,000, realtors say. The same broker has sold a six-room colonial home in Elmore road, Forest Hills, for the trustees of the synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America to Edward L. Johnston. The lot is approximately one acre.

The title to an improved property in Hazel avenue, Mt. Lebanon, has been conveyed by Eugene J. Duggan to the Pittsburgh Mortgage Company for a private consideration. The lot measures 50x112 feet.

Application for building permits follow:

'FRONT PAGE' HERO DIES

CHICAGO, March 23.—(AP.)—Hilding Johnson, for 20 years Criminal Courts reporter for the Herald and Examiner, and the newspaperman whose personality furnished the basis for "The Front Page," died early today.

He had been ill a week with hemorrhages of the stomach, but refused to leave his "beat." He had promised his physician that he would "drop in at a hospital today. He became critically ill last night, however, and never recovered.

Johnson was 40 years of age, and one of the most picturesque characters of the profession. He was described as "knowing everybody worth knowing" in the political and criminal world of Chicago.

Ben Hecht and Charles McArthur, writing "The Front Page," quite frankly used Johnson as their protagonist. And Johnson himself always referred to it as "that play those guys wrote about me."

He is survived by his widow and a son, Louis Hilding, 8.

DAVIS SILENT ON FILM PLAN

LOS ANGELES, March 23.—(AP.)—Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, former secretary of labor, who arrived here by plane last night, was non-committal today concerning reports that he would give expert aid in the production of a motion picture following, in a general way, the story of his own career.

Floods Take Death Toll in Portugal

LISBON, Portugal, March 23.—(AP.)—The Tagus, out of its banks as a consequence of recent heavy rains, has claimed a number of lives in villages inland from Lisbon. Sweeping through the streets of Ribatejo the torrent carried away two peasant women. A barge capsized and two sailors drowned.

Halliburton Leaves Paris on Long Flight

9 STATE BANKS CLOSED IN FEB.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP.)—Nine bank suspensions in Pennsylvania last month were reported by the Federal Reserve Board.

Deposits aggregating $7,981,000 were involved in the suspensions. Four of the group were members of the Federal Reserve System with deposits of $2,035,000, the others being non-members. The nine suspensions during February brought the total for the first two months of the year to 12. The 12 banks, eight of which were non-members of the reserve, had deposits of $9,533,000.

NIAGARA BRIDGE OF ICE BREAKS

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 23.—(AP.)—With a loud cracking noise, the last great ice bridge of the winter broke up and passed into the lower Niagara River. It is probable that a new but temporary bridge will be formed when the ice comes down the river from Lake Erie. The "bridge" is a span of ice across the Niagara just below the cataract.

Several years ago two lives were lost when the bridge moved out unexpectedly.

TAX PAYMENTS DROP SHARPLY

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(INS.)—Income tax collections for the first 20 days of March amounted to $283,229,000, a drop of $177,000,000 from those received during the same period last year, the Treasury announced today.

Receipts collected March 20 were $44,105,000, as compared with $75,000,000 March 20, 1930, and $1,454,600,000 for the fiscal year from July 1 to March 20, a decrease of $258,000,000.

Scalded, U. S. Consul Succumbs In Quebec

QUEBEC, Quebec, March 23.—(AP.)—E. Haldeman Dennison, United States consul in Quebec, who was scalded in an accident in his bathroom a few days ago, died of his injuries in a hospital here. He was 58 years old and had been resident consul here since 1918. He had spent his life in the diplomatic service, filling appointments in Canada, India, Scotland, England and Norway.

He is survived by his widow, the former Lucie Tessier, daughter of Auguste Tessier, retised judge.

Great (?) Fighters

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

It's another defeat for the Haphazardburgs.

But it could be easily seen that the ex-Kaiser resented one of his son's losing a battle without his advice.

This just about finishes up last week's fighting. Dreiser and Lewis are resting easily.

Lewis made no attempt to return Theodore's lobs, so Dreiser won all six sets on his service alone.

We are sorry that Sinclair and Theodore fought at Ra. Long's dinner. It's one social Donnybrook Fair they can't blame on Polly Gann.

After the slugging started they say O. O. McIntyre decided to carry the mail. That's right. When fights start we join the pony express.

That's how Paul Revere got his rep. Paul rode 60 miles and only th first 30 miles was patriotism.

The last of the Wendels has gone and a fortune of one hundred million is about to be kicked around by the lawyers.

We had often heard about the famous Wendel poodle that played on its million dollar lot at Thirty-ninth and Fifth avenue, New York City. Ella Wendel refused to sell the ground because the poodle liked to stroll around it and bark at strangers.

A high green fence made the poodle very exclusive, but you could see him from a window of an office building. One day we got into the office building by disguising ourself as a payroll bandit.

We waited an hour and finally our patience declared a dividend. The poodle came out leading a butler by a string.

All the wealthy pooch did was to scamper around the lot as if he didn't have a cent.

Then he whistled to the butler and they both went indoors.

He was just a dirty white mutt, even if he did have Andy Mellon's certification on his dog biscuits.

We had an assignment to write a story about that four-legged kitchen mop. The only thing we could think of was to take Senator Vest's tribute to a dog and add the coat and pants.

We came back the next day and watched the poodle, but he didn't do anything heroic. We kept the vigil up for a week, but he had too much money to be interesting.

We know there are dogs who have done marvelous deeds. But we knew that this poodle didn't have the slightest idea or desire to carry vaccine to Nome or to jump into a bath tub and save Gertrude Ederle from drowning.

It was just a palatial pup. And now its playgrounds will be sold and Al Smith will erect an 87 annex to a big office building there. It is the last vacant lot on Fifth avenue except one.

That one is owned by another millionaire. They tell us that he pays $60,000 in yearly taxes for the lot and that he grows vegetables on it. Just a hobby. If you can afford that kind of asparagus.

OPPOSE MOVING HERO'S BODY

Attempts of T. R. McKelding, secretary of Mayor Broening, of Baltimore, to remove the body of Commodore Joshua Barney, Revolutionary War and War of 1812 hero, from Pittsburgh to Baltimore likely will meet with opposition here.

Commodore Barney's body has rested in Allegheny Cemetery since 1848. He died here while on a casual visit in 1818. He was buried in the churchyard of the First Presbyterian Church on Sixth avenue, and the body was removed to Allegheny Cemetery in May, 1848. The grave site was named Mt. Barney.

In 1880, a granite monument was erected by the Allegheny Cemetery to mark the graves of Barney, and Lieut. James L. Parker. The latter died at sea, July 12, 1847.

Protests against the removal of Barney's body to Baltimore have been made by the American Legion, department of Maryland, because Fort McHenry, the proposed resting place for Barney's body, is now headquarters for federal dry agents, and is to be turned into a prohibition prison.

Permission to remove the body will have to be obtained from the board of managers of the Allegheny Cemetery, according to the president of the board, M. W. Acheson.

BRITISH BANKER ON U. S. MISSION

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 23. — Proposals for stabilizing the price of silver and England's desire that the Federal Reserve rediscount rate be continued at a low level prompted the reported sailing of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, for the United States, it was believed in official quarters here today.

Dispatches from London were that Norman is now aboard the liner Berengaria, accompanied by Dr. M. W. Sprague, of Harvard University, who last year was attached to the Bank of England as statistical advisor.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, revealed that he discussed the silver situation with President Hoover when he lunched at the White House recently.

ASKED TO DRINK, LOSES DIAMOND

Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd, in a telegram to Indianapolis police today, asked them to search for and arrest Robert Conn, alleged to have fled to Indianapolis by bus after Edward Miller, of 1212 Forbes street, reported a diamond ring valued at $1,500 had disappeared.

Miller told Boyd that he had several teeth pulled Saturday and that he later met Conn. Conn sympathized with him, he said, and invited him to have a drink. When Conn woke up his diamond ring was gone, according to the report.

Wales, George Relax As Ship Sails for Rio

S.S. ALCANTARA, March 23.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales and Prince George spent long hours today sunning themselves on deck as the Alcantara steamed northward toward Rio de Janeiro.

The liner will reach Santos, port of Sau Paulo, tomorrow, giving passengers opportunity for a few hours ashore. The princes are taking their meals with other passengers, as they did on the voyage from England. They left Montevideo yesterday.

Bank Bandits Wait All Night for Holdup

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 23. —(AP.)—Two masked men held up the teller of the Centennial Park branch of the American National Bank today and took approximately $9,000. The robbers had gained entrance to the bank during the night. When the janitor appeared they held him captive until J. W. Stone, the teller, arrived.

Growing Deaf With Head Noises? Try This.

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to Mayliggett's or your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to take. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Lily Damita Cast for Lead In 'Sphinx Has Spoken,' New De Kobra Story

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 23.

Lily Damita will continue to trail her glamorous personality through R-K-O films.

The French actress has been signed to play the lead in "The Sphinx Has Spoken," Maurice de Kobra's spicy novel of continental life. This will be Lily's second R-K-O film, and will find her again under the direction of Victor Schertzinger.

She is just finishing "Mme. Jube," of "The Woman Between," already is under way on Ben Hendricks, Buddy De Sylva and Marie Prevost places . . . A speech in a current picture ran: "If that's life, give me cyanide of potassium." Because the censors held it might instil the idea of suicide, the line was changed to: "If that's life, give me castor-oil."

Lily Damita

DON'T WE ALL?

Bobby Jones says the one thing he likes about the movies is the retakes.

"All my life," he declares, "I've been wishing I could make some of my golf shots over again."

After seeing the first Jones picture, Graham Baker says he has cut 15 strokes off his game without even going to the links.

CRACKS UNDER BLOW

Solly Violinsky, the scenarist, has gone to work for Paramount. After the first day he went to meet his wife in the Roosevelt Hotel. Instead of being in the lobby, as usual, she was in the dining room ordering a meal.

"What's wrong with you?" remonstrated Solly. "Has my new job gone to your head?"

LATEST GOSSIP

In addition to acting, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is helping to write his film vehicles. He says he drew up the outline of "Chances" and of "I Like Your Nerve," which Roland Pertwee wrote for him. The shooting schedule of the latter has been moved up one week so that Doug Jr. and Joan can make their sailing date for Europe . . . Zion Myers, brother of Carmel, will direct Buster Keaton's next picture. He was one of the originators of the M. G. M. dog comedies . . . Bobby Jones gives 25 per cent of the gate of all his benefit games to build up a trust fund for Atlanta charities. He is having another lawyer draw up the paper, as he says he doesn't trust himself . . . Frank Joyce and Myron Selznick, the two agents who put over the Ruth Chatterton and Constance Bennett deals for Warner Brothers, are rolling around Hollywood in new imported cars . . . Joseph Jackson, scenarist, has a new Warner Brothers contract . . . Malibu film residents are starting to rebuild the houses destroyed by the fire. Work starts in a week on the new home of Louise Fazenda and Hal Wallis. Construction

DAVIS TO PRESENT COVERED WAGONS ON SCREEN

By GEORGE SEIBEL

What's a screen drama nowadays without a covered wagon? There are plenty of them in "Not Exactly Gentlemen," the picture shown in the Davis this week. They're all lined up at Custer, ready to race for the Dakotas when the pistol shot is fired. And how they race! Babies are spilled on the wayside, but mothers can't stop to pick them up. If the world went at such a pace ordinarily, humanity would all be down with nervous prostration. Maybe that is what ails the world.

George Seibel

Victor McLaglen is the hero of this picture, and Fay Wray the heroine. There are really three heroes—"not exactly gentlemen"—who are like the famous Three Musketeers, always in trouble.

IT'S AN HONEST PICTURE

But this is an honest picture. It doesn't put on any superior airs of being literature or drama—it is just a good story well told by the camera. Victor and Fay appear as human beings, Lew Cody also has some very good moments, and there's the most thrilling fight in a border barroom! It would make a Kilkenny cat's fur stand on end.

There is good scenery for the backgrounds and not too much mush in the dialogue. It's a real revival of Beadle's masterpieces.

FIVE TURNS OF VAUDEVILLE

Ask me what is the best thing in the five turns of vaudeville, and I'll tell you without hesitation it's Ray Huling's trained seal. That seal is clever enough to shine in any society—it would adorn any parlor. It does everything but card tricks and algebra.

So do Maddox and Clark. These ladies are clever enough, but they do not belong in a family theater. They must make that well-behaved seal blush by some of their doings and sayings.

Four Beaux and Belle, sing, dance and play violins—their act is full of color and movement and melody. The Revel Brothers can make such idiotic faces as they dance that laughter mingles with admiration. And Eddie Nelson's clowning and songs put everybody into a cheerful glow—and must make even that seal chortle with glee.

Loretta Young

LORETTA'S NEW ROLE

For the second time, Loretta Young will play opposite Walter Huston at First National. She has just finished "Upper Underworld" and has been assigned to "The Blue Moon Murder," S. S. Van Dine's first original for the screen.

Florence Ryerson, who adapted all the Philo Vance series for Paramount, is acting in a similar capacity on this one.

Motorist Killed As Car Leaves Road

LEBANON, Pa., March 23.—(AP.)—Thrown from his automobile when it left the Jonestown road at a sharp turn, Aaron Shaeffer, of Elizabethtown, died in a hospital from a fractured skull.

John Early, 42, of Quentin; Edwin Ruhl, 45, Elizabethtown, and Frank Dissinger, 35, Lebanon, also in the car, were in the hospital for treatment for minor injuries.

FLIRTING ALICE WHITE AND BIG OUTDOORS IN THE HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

What is said to be a double screen bill is on exhibition in the Harris.

The other picture is "Naughty Flirt." It is one of those affairs about the modern girl who always gets her man. Alice White plays the girl and Paul Page has the fortune, or misfortune, of being the man.

Neither of the films is anything to write about. So, so long.

"I've shipped on a South Sea Tramp —says Chesterfield

Yet you'll find me just around the corner"

It's a small matter where you meet up with Chesterfield. The point is—get acquainted! You'll find the change to Chesterfield a real change... one which your palate will thank you for! Chesterfield uses choicer and milder tobaccos—nothing else; and so blends and "cross-blends" them that you get just what you want in a smoke... greater mildness and better taste.

Chesterfield

They Satisfy —that's Why!

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(And which you probably didn't either!)

That a whale could not have possibly swallowed Jonah. A whale's throat is only four inches wide!

That the Tower of Babel was completed!!!

That Hans Christian Andersen, whose tales made millions of people happy, was, through circumstances, the saddest of men. Prinstance: His mother slept on a bed of boards taken from a coffin, and Hans himself never owned a bed until he was 61 years old.

That if you put a fresh green leaf under your hat you won't get sunstroke. (This is a heluva time to tell you).

That Amos 'n' Andy probably do not know that there actually is a Madam Queen who owns a beauty shop at 310 W. 57th st., N. Y.

That in the Garden of Eden Adam and Eve spoke Persian, the serpent spoke Arabic and the Angel Gabriel talked Turkey.

That the guillotine, the death instrument, was not invented or devised by Dr. J. Guillotine, for whom it is named.

That if a spoon is marked "Sterling" it must contain .925 fine silver and .075 alloy. Otherwise you can get your money back.

That the peanut is not a nut. It belongs to the same family as the common pea. It is called "peanut" because it tastes like a nut.

That the largest family of which there is a record is probably Rameses II, of Egypt; 200 kids, of which 50 were girls.

That the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company estimates that a child costs a parent $6,150, which includes birth and expenses, until 18.

That the job of being President of the U. S. isn't so tough, considering that six died in office, three of whom were assassinated.

That there are 143 religions in the United States.

That France is unquestionably the greatest wine-drinking country in the world. In 1925 more than a billion gallons were consumed.

That it has been estimated each of 120,000,000 people in the country spends 40 cents a year for books.

That the average daily sale of the Bible is 80,000 copies.

That, with the exception of Christ, more books have been written about A. Lincoln than any other man. Napoleon once held the record.

That the story of Uncle Tom's Cabin first appeared in a Washington newspaper in 1852. There really was an Eliza.

That it takes 43,000 pounds of paint to paint the dome of the Capitol. It takes 35 men about three months to do it.

That the size of your glove is determined by the third finger of the average man's hand, the length of which is the hand's width.

That in the United States more people are committed for drunkenness than for any other offense. Hic!

That there were two songs published entitled "Things I Never Knew Till Now" until last week. Now there's only one.

That Sing Sing in Indian are words for a stony place.

That Jesse James, the noted bandit, was killed by Robert and Chas. Ford, who were found guilty of murder—but pardoned by the Gov.

That in the large cast of Jolson's show, "The Wonder Bar," the only member who speaks perfect English is a Chinese girl.

That the Black Sea, 700 miles long, has no tide.

That the 20 most beautiful words in the language (according to a vote held many years ago) included melody, splendor, adoration, eloquence, virtue, innocence, modesty, faith, joy, honor, nobility, sympathy, heaven, love, divine, hope, harmony, happiness, purity and liberty.

That the three words in the language that contain all the vowels in their proper order are abstemiously, facetiously and arsenious.

That "Amen" is a word of Hebrew origin.

That the French Academy must approve the addition or adoption of any new words into the French language. Recently two English words were added by the Academy—"interview" and "gentlemen."

That there was so such person as Barbara Frietchie, nor did Stonewall Jackson's soldiers pass her house.

That if prohibition were repealed it would throw 3,000,000 men out of work, including bootleggers, rum-runners, etc.

That Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, says the ten biggest news events of 1930 were (in order of public interest): Finding of the bodies and relics of the Andree Expedition, Coste and Bellonte's flight from France to America, the Bobby Jones golf victory, Gandhi and India, the Lindbergh Baby (ah there!), the Columbus (O.) prison fire, the drought in America, the finding of the new planet, Pluto; King Carol, of Rumania, and the burning of the British airship, R-101.

And, of course, the solving of the Rothstein mystery.

RENO MERRY AS LAW LIFTS LID

RENO, Nev., March 23.—(AP.)—Society has acclaimed sky-limit gambling, legalized last week in Nevada, and the natives, the "good time" folks and the divorce seekers largely turned their attention to a cock fight, which was well patronized.

The city's first "society night" was celebrated far into Sunday morning at the most fashionable night club in town. A silver-voiced entertainer kept the crowd informed of what was going on in the famous Blue Room.

Frequently the information was volunteered that a newly-arrived guest was here to take the cure. "The cure" is Reno slang for divorce.

$3,000 in front of him played faro for 33 hours without leaving his seat, and apparently was set to continue his marathon against the "house."

GEN. PICKETT'S WIDOW DIES

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. La Salle Corbell Pickett, widow of Gen. George E. Pickett, leader of the last Confederate charge at Gettysburg, died at a private sanitarium in Rockville, Md., suburb of this city.

For several months she had been under treatment there for hardening of the arteries. Her death was hastened, however, by an injury in a fall.

As "the child bride of the Confederacy" she was the toast of the romantic South during Civil War days, and she carried forward her husband's fame through a half century of widowhood.

As the years passed her title became "Mother Pickett." Even presidents fondly referred to her as "Mother Pickett," and she knew them all from Lincoln.

Jury Split in Case Of Woman Official

BAKER, Ore., March 23.—(AP.)—The jury in the case of Mrs. Emma Fowler, ex-city treasurer of La Grande, charged with failure to account for $112,202 of city funds, was dismissed after members reported they could not agree.

Court attaches said the jury stood six for conviction and six for acquittal. Judge Hall S. Lusk continued Mrs. Fowler's bond of $50,000 pending a new trial.

Attorney Challenges Plaintiff to Duel

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 23.—(AP.)—Mariano Puga Vega, an attorney for General Motors, challenged Osvaldo Koch, chief attorney for a firm which has sued General Motors, to a duel unless the latter retracts statements he made in a letter to a newspaper here. Koch is a son-in-law of President Ibanez and a former minister of justice.

Flier Found at Sea; Missing Four Days

CASABLANCA, Morocco, March 23. — (AP.) — Lieut. Bernard, French flier, missing since Wednesday on an attempted flight from Marseilles to Dakar, was found 50 miles off Cape Juby, sitting helpless in his plane. He had been forced down at sea by motor trouble. The destroyer Tourage brought him here.

Great Cross Given Deterding by Carol

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 23.—(AP.)—Sir Henri Deterding, chairman of the Royal Dutch Oil Company, presided at a meeting at the royal palace today, where he met members of the cabinet and prominent financiers. The Rumanian order of the Great Cross was bestowed upon him by King Carol.

No Quake Letup In South Serbia

BELGRADE, March 23.—(AP.)—The earthquake in South Serbia continued without letup today, completing the work of destruction. Numerous dwellings and other buildings were falling to pieces. The population has grown apathetic, resigning itself to what it regards as an immutable fate.

U. S. Auto Deaths Increase 4.5 Pct.

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP.)—There were more than 835,000 automobile accidents in the United States last year, in which 32,500 persons were killed and 962,000 injured, the Travelers Insurance Company reported today. Deaths increased 4.5 per cent over 1929.

Winter Epidemics

Many Thousands Stricken in Europe and Japan. Now in Eastern United States.

If you have a cold knock it out at once. If not, then use every protection against colds. They are dangerous.

Each little cold you have leaves a few germs in your system. You may not be aware of it and then are an easy victim of even the mildest epidemics that occur during the winter months.

Millions are now using the famous Pure Herb Laxative Tonic called Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea to break up colds quickly and strengthen and fortify the system. The rich juices brewed from these barks, roots, leaves and plants, taken steaming hot at bedtime, are instantly effective.

Prevention leaves no regrets and Bulgarian Herb Tea taken by the whole family at least twice a week will keep you in good physical condition. The cost is small and your druggist will honestly recommend Bulgarian Herb Tea.

JERITZA, VAUGHN DE LEATH, DICK POWELL ON AIR

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

We have been asked many times to explain the sound effects of the Empire Builder, the choo-choo that comes puffing, hissing, whistling to Pittsburgh every Monday night at 10:30 via KDKA.

The whistle is a wooden box a foot long and an inch square. The bells are regulation railroad bells.

When you hang on the side of your chair and expect any moment that the Empire Builder will come tearing into your living room from the loudspeaker, it is merely a miniature train on a miniature track.

Not a toy train. But a small locomotive and coaches built exactly to scale from measurements taken of their big brothers. Thirteen pieces of rail built to scale at the railway shop form the track. Wood ties are used and everything is simulated to scale.

The train and track are enclosed in a soundproof roundhouse constructed of wood. This house is 8 feet in diameter and 2 feet high. The roof merges cone-shape like a megaphone. At the apex there's a microphone to pick up the click of the rails and roar of the cars.

* * *

A compressed air machine similar to that used at automobile serving stations for inflating tires is used for hissing steam.

The Loudspeaker

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, March 23.—The front line of radio's army is still occupied by those who are expressly products of the microphone. To them falls most of the financial rewards. Save in the single field of music radio continues to develop its own stars—its comic, its monologists, its commentators and impersonators.

The microphone gives shelter to a host of entertainers from the Broadway pastures, makes way for them with gusty drum-beating. But the listeners no longer prick up their ears. From past experience they know they can be none to sure of the merit of the entertainment promised. They prefer the tried-and-true performers of the air, men and women who have been tested in the etherial cauldron, who have made the grade from obscurity slowly and laboriously.

The majority of the stage stars who have been recruited to the microphones are notable in their own province. Their prestige is assured, their names famous the length and breadth of the land. They come to radio basking in the sun of dazzling reputation. And the very sun they bask in serves to injure their appeal to the invisible public.

Acclaimed great comedians, great actors on the stage, it is reasonable for the listeners to expect them to be as funny, as appealing on the air.

In the majority of cases, however, the big names flop. Too much is expected of them. Not much is expected, on the other hand, of the comparatively unknown performers who are striving for national radio fame. The latter often click—click by virtue of their originality, the authentic note they manage to inject into their acts, the spontaneity and charm of their presentations.

As a result, radio's hall of fame is filled mainly by persons whose names were generally unknown as entertainers five years ago—such names as Gosden and Correll, East and Dumke, Vallee, Dragonette, Lombardo, Gibbons, Carney, George Frame Brown, Bradford Brown, Phillips Lord.

Yet, program sponsors continue to sign up the big shots of the theater hoping, perhaps, by the very fury of their ballyhoo to get over to the public in the parlors the name, if not the merit, of the commercial product whose money chests are defraying the cost of the period.

The very signing of a major performer is, of course, news. And being news it manages to catch a large proportion of the eardrums. But the eardrums have been buncoed so often that they are becoming more and more inattentive. And so they turn the dials to the standbys of the air and those exclusively microphonic products who are coming along to the position where they will soon be standbys.

* * *

A large part of the failure of famous stage artists to gain a permanent foothold on the radio ladder must be attributed to their disinclination to learn the technique of the microphone.

ACTRESS KILLED, AUTOS INJURE 12 HERE

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

This is really a personal paragraph, directed at the representative of the state auditor general's office who called at the home of Bill Wyman, the burgess of Thornburg, a few days ago. Burgess Wyman, who is known among burgesses as the fairest burgess ever to try a case, was not at home, so the visitor left word for Burgess Wyman to get in touch with him. He wanted to make the regular audit of the burgess' records. Well, Mr. Auditor General's Representative, there's no use wasting time trying to locate Burgess Wyman, because in the five years he's been burgess he hasn't had a single case; consequently he has no records to go over.

You can look out the rear window of Art Thielemann's home in Glenmore avenue, Dormont, and see the front porch of the home of Thielemann's father-in-law, M. Adelbert Wheeler, in Tennessee avenue. Now the Thielemanns and the Wheelers play bridge six nights in the week. One night they'll play at the Thielemanns', the next night at the Wheelers'. When the Thielemanns want the Wheelers to come over to their place, rather than go to the bother of telephoning, Thielemann hangs a white rag out the window. This is the signal to the Wheelers to come over. When the Wheelers want the Thielemanns to visit them, the Wheelers put a milk bottle on the front porch.

The two families are, of course, on the best of terms and accept each other's signals readily. But what, we'd like to know, would happen if the Wheelers put out the milk bottle and the Thielemanns hung the white rag on the same night?

EX-TELLER WILL BE WITNESS IN LOTTERY CASE

Woman to Appear Against Pair Named in Story of Losses Through 'Numbers'

Miss Pearl Ida Ferguson former bank teller held on a charge of embezzlement, will be taken from the county jail tomorrow to testify against S. O. Thomas and Elmer Hart, of Dormont, with whom she is said to have played large amounts of money as wagers on clearing house numbers. The men will be arraigned before Alderman George Anderson.

Miss Ferguson, awaiting trial on the embezzlement charge, is said to have told county detectives she lost her own savings and nearly $6,000 from funds of the Dormont Savings and Trust Company by playing "numbers." Questioned by Judge James H. Gray, she revealed the names of Thomas and Hart.

County detectives say Miss Ferguson charges the men took money from her on many occasions and several times failed to pay her when she won. They are charged with operating a lottery. Detectives are holding a warrant for a former prohibition agent, they say was implicated by Hart and Thomas.

Detectives also were investigating the report that lottery operators in the South Hills were raising a fund to make up the amount taken from the bank. The "numbers" operators professed to believes that if restitution were made the sentence of the bank employe might be lessened.

Pershing Praises 'Fine Courage' of Keystone Division

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER LXXI.

The Meuse-Argonne operations carried out between October 7 and 11 consisted of four specific attacks, as follows:

(1)—October 7. The 1st Corps, employing the 82d Division between the 1st and 28th Divisions, attacked the eastern edge of the Argonne Forest.

(2) October 8. The French 17th Corps, reinforced by the American 33d and 29th Divisions, attacked east of the Meuse on the front Beaumont - Brabant - sur - Meuse, with the object of seizing the heights there.

Gen Pershing

(3) The 5th Corps, reinforced by including within its front the 1st Division, to which was attached a brigade from the 91st Division, attacked the heights of the Bois de Romagne.

(4) October 10-11. A general attack on the 20-mile front from Beaumont west to the Aire River.

The French 4th Army had not been able to keep abreast of the American 1st Army, and it was evident that clearing the Argonne Forest would materially aid its advance. The opportunity presented itself just at this time. Although on October 6 the enemy continued to hold the heights of Cunel and Romagne, nevertheless sufficient space had been secured along the Aire River to warrant an attack to the west with the object of striking the rear of the enemy's positions in the Argonne Forest.

28th Faces Heavy Fire

There was another important factor that entered into the decision to force the withdrawal of the enemy from the Argonne. This was the predicament of the "Lost Battalion," which under Maj. C. W. Whittlesey, had been holding out near Binarville since October 2, as mentioned in the previous chapter.

Efforts to relieve the battalion had so far been unsuccessful, and the men had consumed their rations and expended most of their ammunition, although our aviators had tried to drop small amounts to them. The battalion was resisting heroically against great odds, without any thought of surrender.

Pursuant to the plan an attack was made by the 26th and 82d Divisions against the left and rear of the enemy's positions in the region of Chatel - Chehery and Cornay. After a night march of eight miles the 82d Division (Duncan) entered the line between the 28th (Muir) and the 1st (Summerall). In a series of daring movements to the west by the 28th and 82d Divisions, Cornay, Chatel-Chehery and the dominating hills northwest of Apremont were captured.

Gen. Summerall

The 82d Division captured Hill 180 with dash on the 7th, but the attack against Cornay was broken up by heavy fire. After occupying the hill north of Chatel-Chehery, which had been taken over from the 28th Division, it suffered severe casualties in repulsing an enemy counter-attack.

On the 8th, while executing a change of direction from west to north, elements of the division entered Cornay, but heavy shelling, said to be from our own artillery, forced their retirement. The town was again occupied the following day, but was recaptured by a counter-attack of the fresh German 41st Division. On this same day the 82d Division took over the front of the 28th and made a substantial advance.

The 28th Division October 7 captured Chantel-Chehery in splendid fashion. Troops of the division crossed into the sector of the 82d Division and occupied a portion of the hill north of the town, which had menaced its flank.

The 28th advanced on the 8th

How Engineering Student Built for One Penny an Electric Motor That Runs!

DOMINICK LABINO'S ELECTRIC MOTOR: IT ONLY COST HIM ONE CENT!

A practical electric motor, made from paper clips skillfully bent, five thumbtacks and six feet of No. 20 copper wire. It needs only one battery to run it.

Here's all the material you need for a "Labino Motor," little trouble to make. Most of the material you'll probably find in your daddy's desk drawers, so ask him!

Take four paper clips, five thumb tacks and six feet of No. 20 copper wire, and see if you can make a motor. Impossible? Dominick Labino, a student of electric engineering at Carnegie Institute of Technology, did it, and best of all, it worked.

To make one, bend the paper clips as shown (sketch), mount as shown (picture). With a 1½-volt battery, wire this way:

Wind one side of part No. 4 (sketch) progressively, leaving one end of the wire lying along the left half of the "axle" and carrying the other end to the other side of part No. 4, winding progressively with the end left along the same half of the axle (picture).

Take a wire from the battery, coil loosely as a spring to hold its end tightly on one wire along the axle (picture). This is a commutator. Make a similar one against the other wire along the axle, connecting its other end with wire coiled progressively around an upright of part No. 2. This winding is connected with a similar one on the other upright of part No. 2, then connected with the battery.

Then the motor should run!

2 SAFES LOOTED AND 6 PLACES HELD UP

Thugs Leap on Auto Halted At Intersection and Compel Driver to Give $58 Loot

Four bandit suspects were being held by police today and investigation was being made of six holdups and two safe robberies reported over the week-end.

Captured after he was alleged to have held up the service station of the Standard Oil Company at Hamilton avenue and Putnam street last night, Paul Billings, 48, of 6925 Frankstown avenue, was locked in East End Police Station on a suspicious person charge.

Billings, police said, flashed a cap pistol when he took $12 from the station's cash register after ordering J. C. Pultze, an attendant, of 1013 Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg, to hold up his hands. Billings was to be questioned today in connection with the many recent holdups of the station.

ROBBERY FOILED

Two armed youths held up two attendants at the Atlantic Gasoline Service Station, Murray avenue and Lilac street, Squirrel Hill, early today and escaped with $50. The attendants were Charles Brockhoff and William Maher.

Plans of three youths to hold up the P. H. Butler store, at 90 Judicial street, Mt. Washington, were foiled with the arrest of the trio near the store Saturday night, according to police.

Cruising Mt. Washington streets, Lieut. Martin Toole and Patrolman Louis Foster observed the youths acting suspiciously. One of them, police reported, had a loaded automatic pistol. At the Mt. Washington Police Station they were docketed as W. A. Wasmuth, 23, of 1224 Arlington avenue; Samuel Moscarri, 21, and Joseph Dent, 21, both of 130 Frederick street. They were said to have admitted planning to rob the store.

Four bandits invaded the confectionery of Mrs. Rose Martin at 1712 West Carson street, and escaped after robbing Mrs. Martin of $182 and a diamond ring valued at $85.

The boldest of the bandits active Saturday night was the pair which held up Charles Garenski, of 2520 Penn avenue, diagonally across the street from Penn Avenue Police Station. The thugs, one of whom was armed, robbed Garenski of $29.

PATROLMAN PAUL TROUP INSPECTING BOMB DAMAGE IN AMBRIDGE BRICK BUILDING

AMBRIDGE MAN KILLED, HOLD ROOMMATE

Victim's Head Beaten, Blood Found on Brick, Sponge; Suicide, Says Suspect

Ambridge police and Beaver County detectives were holding Tom Bedowski, of 332 Maplewood avenue, today in connection with the death of his roommate, Denny Choryza, 45, found early yesterday with his head battered in, gas fumes filling the room.

Police learned of the death of Choryza from Aleck Bubin, of 191 First street, who said he had been summoned to the room by Bedowski and told that Choryza was sick. A search of the room disclosed a blood-smeared brick and a pair of pliers.

SUICIDE, SAYS ROOMMATE

A blood-soaked sponge, believed to have been tossed or carried from Choryza's room, was found in an alley outside the boarding house.

Bedowski denied being implicated in his roommate's death, and expressed the belief that the man had committed suicide. Bubin told police that Bedowski had come to him about noon yesterday and said:

"Denny's been sick since yesterday, and there's blood all over the room."

BOTH UNEMPLOYED

Neither Bedowski nor Choryza had been employed for several months, police said. Both had been employed by the American Bridge Company.

Choryza, a Russian, had lived in Ambridge seven years, it was said, and is survived by a widow and two children in Russia.

ZAPPALA'S BOND DUE TODAY

Attorney Frank J. Zappala was expected to post bond today pending his hearing before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan Thursday on charges of embracery and conspiracy, in an alleged jury-fixing plot. Friday and Saturday the lawyer suffered a severe cold and was unable to appear to post his bond.

Barney Gardina, 45, and Bartholomew Bordonaro, 36, of Tarentum, named with Zappala in an alleged attempt to fix the jury trying a robbery case which Zappala was defending last week in Criminal Court, posted bonds of $2,500 each Saturday.

Flier Lands in Back Yard to Recover Hat

CHICAGO, March 23.—(AP.)—When your hat blows off while you are riding high in an airplane and falls down in somebody's backyard, the thing to do is to swoop down to where it lands, pick it up, and then fly on again.

J. V. Neill, an aviator, trying out a midget plane, did it yesterday.

The yard in which the hat landed is 20 feet wide and 100 feet long. After he reclaimed his hat by landing in the restricted space, he clamped it on a bit tighter, and took off from the yard, and sailed again after dodging a few telephone wires.

He had a passenger with him.

POLICE HOLD 3 AFTER BATTLE

Said to have been driving in a reckless manner through Hays early this morning, Joseph Bontento, 35, of Library, was arrested and lodged in Hays Police Station on a charge of violating the automobile laws. City Physician W. H. Evans pronounced him under the influence of liquor.

Frank Ruggiri, 29, and Vitale Napolitano, 28, both the Hazlett street, Lincoln Place, riding in the machine, were arrested on suspicious person charges when they fought with the police who arrested Bontento. In the battle Ruggiri suffered lacerations of the head and was taken to South Side Hospital.

DYNAMITE PLOT PROBE BEGINS

Beaver County authorities and Ambridge police and firemen today were searching for perpetrators of a dynamite plot which early yesterday damaged a three-story brick building at 124-126 Beaver road, Ambridge.

Chief Fisher.

According to police, the building had been padlocked for several months, following a raid by prohibition agents. It had formerly been occupied by Nick Suczic, who, police say, completed a three months' term, March 2, in the Beaver County jail for violation of the liquor laws.

The building was wrecked inside by three charges of dynamite which, investigation revealed, had been timed with wiring attached to the lighting system.

Fire Chief A. Fisher displayed the evidence of the bomb plot he and his aides found when they were summoned to the scene of the blast.

Chief J. W. Flocker, of Ambridge police, nearby when the explosion occurred, stated that no one was in the vicinity prior to the blast. He expressed belief that the charges had been set several hours before.

Ernest Kemena, contractor and owner of the structure, was unable to account for the explosion which caused damage estimated by Fire Chief Fisher, at $8,000.

'Yellow Kid' Weil Steals Show From Count

CHICAGO, March 23.—(AP.)—Joseph (Yellow Kid) Weil, the confidence man, performs best, police say, when he has an important audience.

Yesterday was no exception. When he was called at the police "show up," Count Folke Bernadotte, nephew of the King of Sweden, and members of his party were present, and Weil stole the show — but nothing more.

In fact, he did a little informal complaining himself about the thieves who stole his tie in jail. He was told his loss was not so great, since a man recently lost his mustache in the same tier of cells.

At the conclusion of the performance Weil and his partner, Fred Buckminster, were released.

Tomorrow there will be hearings for the Fourth, Twenty-fifth and Thirtieth wards, and the Fourteenth and Nineteenth wards come up Thursday and Friday.

WIFE BEATEN, MAN ARRESTED

John Chambers, 29, of 1020 Davis avenue, was being held by Oakland police today in connection with alleged beating of his estranged wife, Bertha Chambers, 29, in her room at 328 North Craig street last night.

Separated from his wife for several days, Chambers was said to have visited the woman at the North Craig street address and attempted to effect a reconcilliation. The estranged pair became involved in a quarrel during which, according to police, Chambers struck his wife on the head with a glass bowl. Police arrested Chambers on a suspicious person charge.

FOCH: A GREAT FIGURE IN AMERICAN HISTORY

HE COMMANDED THE LARGEST AMERICAN ARMY EVER ASSEMBLED

READERS WILL WANT THE

It is a coincidence that two of the greatest figures in American military history were not Americans at all and that both were Frenchmen. One, of course, was that young aristocrat, the Marquis de la Fayette, who led a handful of adventurous Frenchmen here to help Washington and who has been the hero of the American schoolboy since. The other is Ferdinand Foch, that spirited little Frenchman, the driving force of victory, who as Supreme Commander of the Allies, directed the largest American Army ever assembled.

KERR STRESSES MORAL ISSUES

The world is intellectually and morally bewildered, declared the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church and moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly in a message to the 10,000 churches of the denomination. The message was read in the churches yesterday.

Dr. Kerr said:

"The moral issues involved in such problems as war, with its cruel waste of life and property, lawlessness, crime, racial prejudice, unemployment, poverty, social and economic injustice, divorce and the liquor traffic must be faced by the church with courage.

"The world in which our lot is cast is intellectually and morally bewildered There are those who are willing to attempt the building of a godless civilization and to experiment with a Christless culture. There are those who are willing to surrender the Christian gospel for some man-centered substitute. The sin and sickness of the world cannot be cured without truth, the truth embodied in the living word of the Christian gospel and applied today as in the church of the New Testament to all the problems of man. The church that is true to Christ faces, as did the early church, a great struggle with the risks of the cross."

The intellectual and moral issues which claim the thought of the modern world cannot be neglected by the church, according to Dr. Kerr, who said:

"Christians must welcome new truths coming from physical science, political science, philosophy and theological scholarship. Christianity has always been able to assimilate or transcend the thought of each generation."

BALDWIN FIRE LOSS $4,000

One of the first volunteer firemen to reach the burning home of Mrs. Helen Amrhein, at 3132 Vernon avenue, Baldwin Township, was her son, William Amrhein, who, living nearby, anxiously awaited the arrival of the township fire truck.

The flames, believed to have been caused by an overheated furnace, soon had spread to the roof of the two-story brick structure. Brentwood firemen also were summoned to combat the blaze.

Hoseman Elmer Tuch, of the Baldwin department, suffered an injury to the ankle when he stepped through the charred floor in the house. His father, Edward P. Tuch, chief of the township firemen, estimated the damage at $4,000.

NUMBERS TRIAL LISTED AGAIN

Dominic Ciquegrani, of Graphic street, alleged East Liberty numbers writer, is listed for trial Wednesday in Criminal Court on a charge of conducting a lottery. This is the third time the case has been scheduled. It was postponed once because his counsel, Congressman Harry A. Estep, was in Washington, and again because City Detective Robert Burke had influenza.

He was arrested January 19, and caused a sensation by implicating his accusers, City Detectives Burke and James Noon, as his employers in the racket. The two officers denied the accusation and appeared before the grand jury February 6, resulting in an indictment. They were ordered suspended.

Waste Baskets

Three hundred and fifty dollars* a year is about the price each family in the United States has to pay for waste in distribution—that is, for wasteful methods used in bringing from manufacturers to consumers the goods sold in retail stores . . . This means that your family is charged nearly a dollar a day for sheer waste. An extra dollar a day—not for better service, not for better merchandise—but for careless, old-fashioned, roundabout ways of doing business.

It is not necessary to reduce the quality of goods in order to reduce prices. It is only necessary to reduce waste. The best food is not costly; waste always is.

A & P, after years of experience, has solved the problems of eliminating all wastes in the distribution of food. That is why it is able to sell the best foods at the lowest possible prices. Its customers pay no tax in wastes.

The Great ATLANTIC & PACIFIC Tea Co.

* Based on the estimate published by the U. S. Department of Commerce that the waste in distribution in this country every year amounts to $10,000,000,000.

CUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO

A New York fashion expert has found a simple, easy method to double the wear of silk hose and undergarments. These articles, worn next to the skin, wear out doubly fast because of the perspiration and other body excretions which soften and rot the silk.

This lady found that soap and water were inadequate for washing such articles. She recommends when washing silks to add a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Wash and rinse as usual. This method not only cleans thoroughly and quickly but makes silks like new with revived colors and pleasing freshness. The difference in results over the use of soap and water alone will amaze you. It means longer life—real economy.

Energine is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, gloves and ties. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

MILLINER SHOWS NEWEST MODE IN SPRING STRAWS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, March 23.—Eagerly we clutch at the straws of fashion, knowing that for spring—and to express the new season—there is nothing so enchanting as a new straw hat. And this year we are singularly blessed by hats that are the last word in chic without any sacrifice of flattering charm. There are hats in profusion to make all of us devastingly dangerous. Which is just as it should be when the warm spring sunshine gilds even the meanest street or alley.

THE MILLINERY echoes of the past, sounding so clearly through the modern sartorial symphony, are particularly attractive and should prove successful if not overdone. These fashions are not suited to every type of face and yet they are generally eagerly seized by women who should never touch them, while the staple shapes that have proved their worth throughout the years go unheeded and unworn. It is better, unless one is the type, to stick to the proved friends—for the right hat is a friend indeed, and should never, never be abandoned for a new millinery acquaintance, which may be charming but isn't of our particular style.

THE MODEL sketched to grace today's page is expressly suitable for the chic young thing and is hers alone. The model is of mauve bakou with pale pink velvet ribbon and is by Talien. The ribbon is shirred closely across the top of the forehead and has one or two ends at each ear. At the front, the brim is slashed to permit the ribbon to pass through and one sees it against the crown and on the outside of the hat. The side brim has several folds.

Secret Marriages Often End in Disaster

Do you think it would be too utterly-thrilling-for-words to belong to The Only One, without the world knowing it?

And are you quite sure that such a marriage would be ever so much more romantic and lasting than one of the humdrum regular affairs? Yes?

Then here's where you stop, look and listen—while Anne tells you how your theory works out.

Anne and Arnold shared your notions—and put them to the test. For six months now they've been dodging around corners and stealing week-ends—belonging, yet not belonging, to each other.

Dislikes Deception

Has it paid? Judge for yourself.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I am in such a terrible state of bewilderment that I must seek advice of someone.

"I have read your column for some time, but I never thought that I would ever find myself among those who ask your advice. Yet here I am, and I simply must get this off my mind. It is driving me mad.

"I am 20 years old and a senior at the university. Right now I am sitting in an anthropology class, but I haven't heard a word that the professor has said.

"And why not? Here's my story. I have been secretly married for six months. My husband is one of the graduate students at the university. He is quite good-looking . . . not at all the 'student' type . . . and I am passionately in love with him. We met in school here.

"As our marriage is a secret, we cannot live together, but have to resort to stolen week-ends with each other. And, of course, we are always frightened and fear detection.

"At first he was very, very anxious to announce our marriage, but I objected then because of my parents. They disapproved strongly of anyone marrying while still in school. I knew that Arnold's parents would object, too. And so it has gone on until now.

"Lately I have grown to dislike the deception and to feel that it is foolish to go on living in this clandestine manner, and I am very anxious to tell people the truth. But, to my great surprise, Arnold is no longer anxious to make our marriage known, but keeps putting it off every time I say anything about telling.

Dangerous Ground

"And just lately I have found out that secretly he has been going to several parties and dances, to which I was not invited, and to which he took another girl. . .The girl he used to go with when he was an undergraduate.

"And his attitude toward me has changed, too. He has become sort of distant and casual with me. He doesn't seem to care as he once did. And that makes me dreadfully unhappy.

"I feel that my marriage should be known, but he refuses to consent to it. And in my present mental state I cannot carry on with my school work. I feel that the happiness to which we both once looked forward so eagerly is being dangerously undermined.

"Please, please, what shall I do? ANNE."

You poor kid, you! I know just how that heart of yours aches! And I know, too, just how you got into this muddle . . .and my heart goes out to you in sympathy.

Of course your marriage should be made known . . .not . . .before this situation gets any deeper in the fog.

You are walking on dangerous ground, my dear . . . just as any other girl or boy who goes in for a secret marriage is walking on dangerous ground. Marriage, my dear, is more than merely an affair between two individuals. It is a matter that concerns society itself . . . and when you go into it secretly you leave the gates open for trouble.

What'll you do? Well, maybe, honey, sitting down and doing a little solid thinking might help.

Why was marriage invented? Why were all those tiresome old laws made? This is why. Just to prevent such predicaments as the one in which you now find yourself.

Should Make Fact Public

Marriage was invented because love is an off-again-on-again-gone-again affair. Lovely theories to the contrary, ardent hearts do not stay easily in harness. They need a little adhesive if they're going to put on a permanent performance. You tried to dispense with adhesive, and—you know the rest of that story.

And now, if you have learned your lesson, what shall you do next? Profit by that lesson. You've learned that conventions have their uses—that the public announcement of a marriage forms a definite protection to the woman. Then act on that knowledge. Secrecy is buying you nothing but grief. Stop the secrecy. Make that announcement, whether he likes it or not. Make it, in spite of the storms it may bring upon you. The storms can't possibly cause you as much heartache as continued silence will cause.

"But I may lose him!" you say.

Well, kid, if he doesn't love you enough to publish the fact to the world, what good will it do you to keep him? And, when it comes right down to brass tacks, isn't he pretty well lost already?

Maybe if you'll show a little gumption and self-respect there's still a chance to save your marriage. Otherwise, I fear—you'd better decide to stick to anthropology and kiss matrimony goodbye.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, March 24

The sidereal operations bearing rule on this day accent some vexatious and perplexing situations, possibly in connection with money matters, signing papers or writings, or superinduced by a sudden (though not important) opening for change or travel. Be on guard against conspiracy and intrigue or subtle undermining. Some recognition or favor in employment is presaged.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves active and energetic, and winning some recognition from employers, but they are in danger through fraud, misrepresentation and duplicity, as well as through rashness or speculative tendencies. With care they may have a prosperous and interesting year.

A child born on this day should be lively and energetic and should succeed in employment, although it may be adventurous fond of change and given to scheming and subtlety in gaining its ends.

Some girls are too easily impressed when they meet a so-called "rich" young man.

The fact of the matter is that he just happens to be the son of a rich father. He himself is not even rich in healthy ambition and the will to work, as every young man should be.

If she elopes with such a young man she is apt to discover that rich fathers have smart family lawyers who fix it so that foolish sons cannot get their hands on the family fortunes.

She is apt to find herself not nearly so well married as if she had chosen a poor young man who is rich in character, ambition and pride in his own abilities.

Character, not father's cash, counts most.

Phil Veritzen Claims First Dance With Madge

There was distinct petulance in Helena Brixton's tones, the petulance of the petted woman whose husband has granted her every wish. That she wanted to join in the dancing and was annoyed at her brother-in-law for staying on the floor with the younger people, thus making the older group a man short, was patent to everybody. Both Dicky, her dinner partner and Harry caught the cue cleverly. Dicky, I knew through courtesy, Harry because he could not bear to see Charles Owen—whom he knew Lillian disliked and feared—dancing with Marion.

"Forget about your brother-in-law," Dicky said, "and tread a measure with me, won't you?"

"I'll just mosey out there and send him in," Mr. Underwood said. "I want one turn around the room with Marion, but I don't expect I'll get more than half a turn before I'm shelved again. But I'll stay shelved and come back here to the chaperon line. Lil doesn't feel like dancing tonight, I know, and my own old bones are rheumatic, so we'll stake ourselves out a nice settee and be here to console the wallflowers—if any."

"Here's the first one," Edith Fairfax said with an edge in her voice, though she laughed as she spoke. But I knew that the sight of Dicky dancing off with someone else had upset her, so strong had become the possessive feeling for him in which she had indulged herself progressively ever since their business partnership.

But Lillian's face was glowing as she turned it to me and murmured so the rest could not hear.

"Isn't Harry—sweet?"

I nodded an assent, for I knew what it was that had touched her so deeply. There is no trace of rheumatism or other ailment in Harry Underwood's muscles or nerves despite the many hardships which have been his. But with the infinite tact and understanding which is his for his wife, he had divined that she would rather not dance tonight when, for all she knew, Robert Savarin's spirit might be slipping out of life. She did not love the artist who had given her such ardent devotion—all her love was her husband's, but she was not long from the farewell interview with him which the dying man had begged, and it could not help but shadow all the Christmas festivities for her, although she let no one deduce the fact from any speech or action of hers. But her husband knew, and he was delicately telling her of that knowledge and of his determination to share her inaction.

I felt a light touch upon my arm and turning met my employer's questioning eyes.

"Will you dance?" he said formally, with a little Old World bow.

I bowed in answer, and with the grace and formality of an earlier day investing the modern dance steps with which he had familiarized himself, he gave me a most enjoyable turn around the room. I saw Mr. Owen taking Edith out when Harry Underwood had come back to Lillian. There was no stag line among the older group, and I found myself estimating how long I should have to dance with my employer. I enjoy dancing, and my employer is a good partner. But there is just one man whose steps suit mine exactly, and I longed for the musicians to come to the end of the dance. I did not know of course that Dicky would ask me for the next dance—I had fancied that he had avoided me since he caught sight of the over-elaborate dinner decorations. But with Lillian not dancing, I did not believe that he would ask Edith to dance before he did me.

"Are your thoughts worth more than a penny?" My employer's quizzical, slightly offended voice brought me out of my conjectures. "If so, I am entirely willing to pay the price."

"They are absolutely free, such as they are," I told him, hurriedly searching my mind for a "thought" which could be put into immediate words. "I was thinking that I never have seen a more charming dance. The girls are so lovely, the young men so well set up, and they are all having so wonderful a time."

"Are they?" His voice was ironical and held a hint of displeasure. "My young cub doesn't look particularly blissful. He's evidently a man of one idea tonight, and that is to follow Miss Mary around the hall, cutting in at every opportunity. I don't think he's danced with another girl so far. He's making a perfect ass of himself. But Colin will be too much for him. No amateur can compete with a professional."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Guarding the Mouth Is Important to Health.

There are infections of the mouth and throat which are difficult to recognize. In consequence, the ailments are neglected and often run a long time without receiving the necessary attention. This is particularly true of "Vincent's angina."

Dr. Copeland

Vincent's angina is a term applied to certain ulcer-forming conditions of the mouth and throat. It is an infection of the membrane lining these parts. The germs or bacteria responsible for it are two in number. They only are found in unhealthy tissues. They are rarely, if ever, found in the healthy mouth. They are associated with infected conditions of the teeth, gums and tonsils.

The disease differs from the sore throat caused by more dangerous germs. It is not so severe and produces less constitutional effect. It is rarely dangerous to life.

Included among the symptoms are sore throat, headache and a general feeling of poor health. Temperature in the acute form may be as high as 102 degrees.

If ulcers are present the breath is bad. Swallowing is painful and sometimes the glands of the neck are swollen.

Some epidemics of tonsilitis are really attacks of the Vincent infection. This is confirmed by obtaining the Vincent germs from the throat.

The disease is mild and quickly responds to treatment where there is no mixed infection or complications. This treatment must be given by your doctor or a throat specialist.

It is important to keep the mouth scrupulously clean. This can be accomplished only by systematic brushing of the teeth and care of the gums. Where the tonsils are enlarged and infected they should be removed. If the teeth are infected they should receive proper dental care.

Do not neglect the mouth and throat. It is the gateway for the entry of many germs. Such germs cause disease that can easily be prevented by proper care and hygiene.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The complexion is a barometer that tells the state of the health. A yellow skin shows that the body is under standard, that diet should be better regulated, that the intestinal tract is not functioning actively. No bleach will whiten a sallow skin. The cure will be found in liberal consumption of fruit juices, green salads and vegetables.

When the permanent wave is fresh and young, unruly and without a pattern, give it plenty of brilliantine. The less brushing the better. Not that the brushing takes out the curl, which it doesn't, but because wetting and oiling, combing and petting make stronger the pattern and helps the hair to take on the character of the natural undulation.

The daily bath is the supreme beautifying rite. In 24 hours the surface of the body gathers atmospheric dust, oily substances thrown off by the sebaceous glands, dead skin scales, salty liquids excreted by sweat glands, and soil imparted by friction of frocks that are not washable. One can't lug all that poison around and feel like a lady! Or look like one, either.

Eyes of all colors are made brighter, more lustrous, by giving to the eyelids a faint touch of rouge. Another trick is to smear the eyelids with vaseline, though this beauty stunt works better for dark eyes than for gray or blue ones. Eye shadows require skillful handling, and should do a fade-away when they come close to the lashes.

Round garters interfere with circulation; there is no health in them. If too snug they can produce an almost unbearable nervousness. Hose supporters should be worn, suspended from a girdle, or attached to the foundation garment. To keep stockings up neatly and smoothly three pairs should be used, one pair back, one pair front, one at the sides.

Puffs under the eyes need alternating applications of hot and cold water, followed by compresses of gauze which have been dipped in witch hazel. Drinking six glasses of water a day sometimes unpuffs them. They can be inherited, or produced by constipation, lack of sleep or lack of fresh air. The greatest help is found in copious water drinking.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Announcing the Widow's Marriage.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you kindly inform me the correct way to announce my marriage? I am a widow and my parents are dead, but I have a married sister. Would it be correct for her to announce it?

2. Also how should I use my name with the prefix "Mrs."?

MRS. G.

1. You would elect the best form if you were to have your married sister and her husband announce your marriage.

2. For your formal name, use your husband's name (the new husband's name) with the Mrs. before it. This would, for example be the form on your visiting card, that most formal of all social details. In your formal name, do not use your first name.

Flowers Are Appropriate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Are flowers a suitable birthday gift for a young lady? Are roses suitable, and if so, what color is better, red or yellow?

2. Would it be all right to give the young lady a number of flowers corresponding to her age? L. D.

1. Yes, flowers are the perfect gift to send for a young lady's birthday, or indeed for the birthday of a lady of any age.

Send the colors that she prefers, if you know what this is, and if not, send the color that you think she would prefer.

2. Yes—if she is of that age!

For the Semi-Formal Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what is correct for a man to wear to a semi-formal dance? B.

Embarrassing Table Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My friend and I went to visit a friend and his wife recently and we were very much disturbed at this friend's table manners. All the time we were eating at the table he was soaking his bread and cake in his coffee. We could see how embarrassed his wife was. Don't you think that was very bad table manners? At least I think so. L. B.

Yes, ma'am, I do. And I am very sorry for his wife, who must go through this embarrassment so often!

Household Hints

Frequently spots on a felt hat may be rubbed off by rubbing lightly with pieces of blotter.

A cloth dipped in vinegar gives a wonderful polish to windows after washing as usual; rub afterward with soft, dry cloth.

When washing linoleum or oilcloth, to each gallon of water add some starch or a teaspoonful of kerosene, or turpentine, to make it bright and new. Never use clear kerosene as it rots the fabric.

Jelly that doesn't "jell" is a common kitchen tragedy. If the jelly refuses to thicken, place a grated carrot in a clean piece of cheesecloth and strain a few drops into the jelly pan. Then place on the fire and boil a few seconds longer. And if the syrup is consistently stubborn and refuses to harden after having been placed in the glasses, place them in a dripping pan half full of cold water, then cook in the oven until done.

Burning acid stomach, pain after eating, belching, gas, bloating, heartburn, dizziness, and the resulting nervousness, sleeplessness, and colds won't trouble you if you use the new prescription ACIDINE.

Mrs. B. C. Hill of Ogden, Utah, says: "I had trouble for four years with my stomach and had taken baking soda and many medicines but they would give me only momentary relief. I tried the sample of ACIDINE which you mailed me and it was so good that I bought a large can and after using half of it, haven't had a pain in my stomach since. ACIDINE surely is wonderful."

No other known remedy for acidity surpasses Acidine. Contains an effective starch digestant, Japtase, which liquefies 800 times its own weight of starchy food, under proper conditions. Five other scientific ingredients neutralize burning acid, stop gas, soothe irritated stomach lining. Its instantaneous action in cleaning up the troubles that commonly lead to stomach distress is more pleasing than you would believe possible.

Acidine is safe, harmless and pleasant for adults and children. Used by millions of people. It costs you nothing if it fails, for the Acidine people say to every druggist, "If any customer is displeased with the results obtained from Acidine give them back their money immediately. We stand behind this product absolutely." Keep Acidine in your home always.

WAGNER'S RECORD WITHOUT PARALLEL

THE REMARKABLE NATURE of the record made by Honus Wagner in never being held below the .300 mark in hitting until his eighteenth season in the big show is fully realized only when you weigh it against the best modern performances. No other player ever paralleled Wagner's achievement from the start of his career in fast company. Ty Cobb went farther in one stretch and placed 23 years of .300 clouting to his credit, but he was below .300 in his first season in the majors, hitting only .240 in 1905. Cap Anson tripped in his sixteenth season. Napoleon Lajoie went down in his twelfth. Both Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins were under .300 in their first campaigns.

Riggs Stephenson

The immortal Honus has no rivals among the present-day stickers. Figures compiled by Harry Salsinger, Detroit statistician, disclose the interesting fact that, even in this era of the lively ball, among all front-rank hitters now in the major leagues who have served eight or more full seasons, there is only one man who has never batted below .300 for a complete year. The lone exception is Riggs Stephenson, leftfielder of the Chicago Cubs. And he has completed only nine seasons, against Wagner's 15. Riggs was down to .296 in 1925, but played in only 19 games before going to the minors temporarily.

BOB FOTHERGILL played his first eight seasons in the majors without once falling below .300. But last year he missed the mark for the first time. Stephenson went on to keep his record clean for the ninth consecutive year and now stands out alone among the veterans of eight or more seasons. Al Simmons has never been below .300, but has been in the majors only seven years.

Stephenson's closest rival is Jim Bottomley, of the Cardinals, who has fallen below .300 only once in 10 years. Even the mighty Babe Ruth and Rogers Hornsby each went below the line in two out of 16 seasons. Harry Heilmann, another swatting ace who has seen 16 years of service, finished under .300 four times. George Sisler, one of the all-time greats, and who has passed out since last season, missed three times in 16 years.

AMONG ALL THE players who were in the big loops last year only 14 were credited with eight or more seasons of .300 hitting. Not a Pittsburgh hitter is included. The best Pirate records are held by Pie Traynor and George Grantham, each of whom has batted .300 seven times.

In addition to the seven named above, those with eight or more years to their credit are Sam Rice, 13; Frank Frisch, 10; Charley Jamieson, Joe Judge and Joe Sewell, nine each, and Goose Goslin and Bob Meusel, eight each.

EXPLAINING the hitting ability that has made him the most difficult player in the majors to strike out, Joe Sewell says: "I am a chop hitter. I stand close to the plate and watch every ball keenly as it comes up. I take a short stride into the ball, not more than a foot, and swing with my arms and wrists. I send my body through after the bat, but never until I have hit the ball. I see every ball leave the bat. In order to do that, a hitter must follow the ball right up to the plate, timing its break and taking a wrist snap at it."

Walter Johnson

ONE REASON WHY many fans doubted the success of Walter Johnson when he was made manager of the Senators was that they feared he would be too lenient with his players. But Walter has demonstrated that there is more than one way of getting results. Instead of driving his men, he just steps out and sets an example for them.

Johnson always has contended that the principal trouble about getting ball players in shape in the spring is that they won't work hard. As a rule they start out willingly enough, he says, but as soon as they get tired many of them want to quit. Few have the willpower to keep going after they become wearied. They won't punish themselves.

WALTER PROCEEDED TO correct this at the expense of strenuous effort on his own part. When the Senators started training at Biloxi he weighed 215 pounds. He was first on the field and the last to leave each day, he labored as earnestly as if he were a mere rookie striving for recognition, and after 17 days he had taken off 20 pounds and was down to 195, a bit below the weight at which he used to pitch.

Johnson didn't have to do it, but he punished himself to set an example for his men. That, too, in spite of the fact that he will be 44 next fall, almost twice the age of some of his players. The result is that there isn't a shirker in the Washington camp. Walter shamed them into keeping at it. Willingness to inflict self-punishment as an example to the privates is one of the qualities of a good general.

UNABLE TO RAISE any other question in connection with Tommy Loughran's recent ring victories, some of the eastern boxing men say they are not convinced that he could repeat his wins over Max Baer and Ernie Schaaf, the latter in particular, if the distance were 15 rounds, instead of 10. They argue that in the Schaaf bout Ernie was coming fast in the closing stages while Tommy was letting [illegible], and express the opinion that five additional rounds might have made a difference.

LOUGHRAN, WHO FOUGHT 15 rounds as a light-heavyweight against Mike McTigue, Jimmy Slattery, Leo Lomski, Pete Latzo and James J. Braddock and won every time, has a plausible answer to explain his let-down. He says that when he is to box 10 rounds he rates himself to go 10 rounds, not 15.

"When a sprinter enters the 100-yard dash he does not pace himself the same as he would if he were in the 220-yard dash," Tommy adds. "If he did he never would win. Nor would he stand a chance of winning the 220 if he gave everything he had in the first 100 yards. I know how to rate myself along."

THE AVERAGE DECLINING sport star hates to give up or to admit that he has reached the end of his rope. He thinks he still can carry on in spite of everything. Charley Paddock, one-time fastest human, is the latest to scoff at retirement suggestions.

Perturbed by a published report that he had finally retired as a sprinter, Paddock appeared at the Los Angeles A. C. took out a brand new set of spikes and announced that he would continue his training and is not yet through on the cinder path.

Lionel Hitchman

ONE OF THE most prominent figures in professional hockey is Lionel Fred Hitchman, captain of the Boston Bruins, and well remembered by Pittsburgh fans for the damage he used to do to the Pirates when this city was in the National League. Though only 28, Hitchman at the end of this season will have participated in six playoff series for the Stanley Cup, a record not equaled by any other active National League iceman of today. This is his tenth year in the majors and his twelfth in organized hockey, and since he joined the Bruins in 1925 he has seen a small army of players come and go. He is an all-around athlete, and in addition to hockey has played baseball, golf, tennis, lacrosse and Rugby football. Hitchman says that the same type of man plays hockey today as played it 10 years ago, but that the difference is in speed —speed in thinking as well as in skating.

By CARL W. SHATTO

Coach Charles Reid and President-Manager Roy D. Schooley today are busy polishing up the hockey weapons of the ambitious Yellow Jackets, who seek to make distinctive an International League season that already must be regarded as highly successful.

Tomorrow night, in Cleveland, the local skaters meet the Indians, defending champions, in the first game of the circuit's annual playoffs for the title, and the Schooley stalwarts will be greatly surprised if they do not occasion just as much surprise in the two weeks of concentrated drama as they did in succeeding in their recent long, uphill climb to a place in the money circle.

JACKETS FIGHTING TEAM

Schooley, long experienced in the business of winning championships, has taught his warriors to anticipate victory, and to fight valiantly that anticipation might become realization. Since February 7, when Schooley assumed absolute control of the club, the Jackets annexed 25 of the 51 points with which they finished the race, winning 10, tying five and losing four of 19 frays. This fighting style of play is likely to bear fruit in this short, stern title series, in which great courage is absolutely essential to success.

Indications are that the Jackets will be put to their most severe test in the first of the two weeks of milling. After meeting the Indians in Cleveland tomorrow, they will return to tangle with Buffalo's first-place Bisons at Duquesne Garden on Thursday, and Saturday they will be the guests of the Bisons in Buffalo.

Cleveland's bandbox rink is the toughest spot in the circuit from which to make off with a point or two, and Buffalo's proud leaders are the terrors of the loop.

LOCALS 'UNDERDOGS'

Next week the local icemen will entertain Cleveland here on Tuesday, invade Windsor on Thursday, and finish up with the Bulldogs at the Garden on Saturday. The Jackets figure to "take" Cleveland here, and to battle the Bulldogs to a standstill anywhere any time out. If they survive the first week of milling in fair shape, therefore, the crown should be within comparatively easy reach.

The Jackets will enter the competition as "underdogs" not only because they finished in the lowest play-off berth, but also because Gordy Fraser, their defense giant, still is having trouble with his broken hand. Fraser will have to continue to wear his special brace until the series is closed.

Because of the illness of Alex Wood, their goalie, the Indians' play-off chances also are rather uncertain. Wood is in the hospital with an attack of influenza. Gordon Baxter, out with an injury during much of the season, returned to the Cleveland nets against Buffalo Saturday.

TICKET SALE BEGINS

The ticket sale for the championship games to be played here opened at the Garden today. Three-game tickets are to be sold today and tomorrow, and single game tickets will be placed on sale on Wednesday. The sale is being conducted in accordance with the league rules, which do not permit of telephone applications or the holding of reservations. Schooley has decreed that there will be no increase in prices for the title games.

Says Nick Altrock

Baseball's Comedian

BILOXI, Miss., March 23.—I guess they will have to merge those Philadelphia ball clubs and appoint Andy Mellon manager to get anywhere this year. Al Simmons wants a three-year contract for $100,000 from the A's and Chuck Klein is holding out for $14,500 a year from the Phils. Chuck's is the more dangerous feat.

Nick Altrock

The Phillies always have been run on Harry Lauder principles and they would put a scarecrow in right field and send a clothing dummy to bat before they would pay $14,500 a year.

If Klein is going to hold out until he gets it, he might as well pick out a route for selling aluminumware now.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: GEORGE PSALMANAZAR, THE MOST REMARKABLE IMPOSTER IN HISTORY—George Psalmanazar, a native of France (1679-1763), conceived the plan for the greatest literary hoax in history when he was only 25 years old. Impersonating a native of a purely imaginary island of Formosa, he published an entirely fictitious "Historical and Geographical Description of Formosa." In addition, he invented an alphabet, a grammar and a language which he attributed to his imaginary island and into which he "translated" the English Catechism and part of the Bible. For many years, until he confessed his forgeries, he was the subject of a very heated controversy raging around his book. The scientists of Europe were long divided as to the merit of his work. LAKE TAHOE NEVER FREEZES—Although Lake Tahoe is at an elevation of 6,225 feet and at times the surrounding country has a temperature of 20 degrees below zero, Tahoe never freezes. Due to its great depth and possibly because of the ruffling and consequent disturbance of its surface by the strong northeasterly winter winds, this vast body of water maintains too high a temperature to be affected by the attending short periods of low temperature in the vicinity. There also are some hot springs on the northeast shore which tend to keep up the temperature of the lake water. (Reference: U. S. Department of Agriculture, Forest Service, Nevada City, Cal.)

Two out-of-town heavyweights of established reputation make their Pittsburgh debuts in the main bout at Motor Square Garden tonight. Both are tall and clever and good punchers. They are Benny Touchstone, of Detroit, and formerly of Florida, and Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, O.

Touchstone recently made his first appearance in these parts in McKeesport, stopping Frank Novak, of the North Side, in impressive fashion. Sekyra defeated Emmett Rocco, of Ellwood City, at New Castle, Pa., last Monday

NO. 9—PETE McCLANAHAN,
LOS ANGELES, March 23.—Pete McClanahan, of the well-known Texas League, is a youth gifted with rare baseball skill and is a gentlemanly chap, but his tour along the highway of professional baseball had at least one unusual obstruction.

There was parental objection to Sunday baseball in the family and there seems to be some still, but Pete apparently has softened the viewpoint of his mother to some extent.

McClanahan

Texas is the largest state in the Union and if a count were made it might be that the Lone Star commonwealth would lead the other states in the pro ratio production of ball players, although California would enter a serious dispute to this claim. In any event, Pete is one of the large army of players who learned the diamond pastime on the wild lands of Texas.

MOTHER OBJECTS, RELENTS

Everything in an athletic way went well with Peter before he landed in the Texas League and then his sailing was O. K. until his mother learned that her son would have to play the game on the seventh day of the week. If there were any objections on the paternal side, the boy just out of high school was able to cut his way through them, for a fond father, as a rule, loves to see his son shine in the great game of the ball and bat.

But Pete was nothing if not persuasive and in due time he reached a compromise with his ma. She agreed to allow him to play on the Sabbath, but under no condition would she be present at a game on that day. So Pete was able to stay in the league and take his place in the lineup according to the arrangement of the schedule.

MAKES IMPRESSION

Manager Jewel Ens has not seen enough of McClanahan to reach a conclusion about his future. The lad has much grace and apparently is a ball hawk. He is a reminder of the Ira Flagstead-George Burns type of fielder that plays the batter smartly and fields batted balls with polish. Peter seems to have that faculty of making a slow but lasting impression. He knows a lot with-

LARRY FRENCH, SPENCER SET TO HURL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 23.—Jewel Ens and his pretentious baseball squad invaded this far western metropolis today, the big leaguers from Pittsburgh being slated to stage 10 diamond clashes here before they depart. While showing at Wrigley Field, home of the Los Angeles and Hollywood clubs, the Freebooters will take on the Angels, the Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs in the order named, three games will be played with the Angels, four with the Jungaleers and three with the Chicago Bruins.

Glenn Spencer and Larry French are primed to go to the mound this afternoon for the Pirates.

BUCS LOSE PAIR

There was no swash-buckling swagger to the Pirates as they rolled out of San Francisco last night. During a bright and beautiful Sunday, they sustained two more defeats at the hands of the fighting Cubs of the Hornsby regime. The double setback meant a clean sweep of the four battles for the Bruins. One year ago at this city, the Pirates made the Bears climb the pole and jump through, but in the series ending yesterday, everything was different.

Approximately 20,000 Native Sons saw the Freebooters and Cubs in their dual bill staged in the morning and afternoon. The morning crowd drew almost 5,000 patrons, the fine afternoon attracting about 15,000 to the new and pretty ball orchard.

Lady Luck frowned upon the Pittsburgh athletes in the early contest which they dropped, 3 to 2, in 11 rounds. Manager Ens used a lot of his reserves in this contest and the kids for the most part were very impressive, but they could not win a break.

A bad piece of fielding on the part of Claude Willoughby put the Cubs in a position to win the afternoon struggle. Willoughby threw the rocket to the wrong base, his error of omission putting the winning run in an ideal spot to score on a short single which

LOCAL PINMEN GET IN MONEY

BUFFALO, March 23.—Neither of the two Pittsburgh teams rolling on the midnight shift of the American Bowling Congress tourney here yesterday was able to hit off a count of appreciable proportions. Fintex No. 1 edged into the money with a 2,735, while Fintex No. 2 was outside with its score of 2,512.

Ten changes in the standings of the leaders occurred, Chicago, Cincinnati, Peoria, Detroit and Auburn, N. Y., bowlers upsetting the pacemakers.

Bob Williamson landed another high berth for Chicago when he sailed into third place in the singles with 703. Ed Wetterman, Cincinnati, took sixth place with 686, Nathan Jones, Auburn, 668, ninth, and Fred Thoma, of Peoria, tied Bert Meyers, Syracuse, for tenth, with 664.

Bert Pearson and Edwin Hartke, veteran Detroit pair, crashed through to sixth spot in the doubles with 1,235. Edwin Wetterman and Hugh Stewart, Cincinnati, counted 1,229 for eighth. Wetterman preceded his doubles and singles totals with 596 in the team division, aggregating 1,899 for the runner-up spot in the all-events. Louie Haake went into fourth place in the all-events with 1,888.

PITT BEGINS SPRING GRID DRILLS TODAY

40 CANDIDATES REPORT; DUKE NETMEN OUT

Spring football practice at the University of Pittsburgh gets under way this afternoon. That is the big college news of the day, and to 30 or 40 varsity candidates at Pitt, and means the beginning of a tough old grind.

The grind won't be so tough this year at that, for it won't be so long. This year's spring drill is to be cut short by at least two weeks to what it has been in the past, which means about six or seven weeks of work. The athletic council decided to make this move about a month ago, and Coach Jock Sutherland must abide by the decision of the council. Whether it makes it tough for Jock or not makes no difference. Orders are orders.

Coach Sutherland has issued a call which he has caused to ring up and down the halls of the university, urging all young men with a yen for football to report for the team and to take advantage of the spring workouts. Coach Jock is in hopes of uncovering some likely material, perhaps lining up some Stadium fodder worth carrying to camp at Windber next fall.

The Tipoff

The Dukes are starting their tennis drills for the year this afternoon, Coach Grant Siverd assembling his candidates for an inaugural meeting. The Dukes have asphalt rectangles, which permit the Bluffites to work out of doors ahead of other net varsities in the district, bound to confine their early training to indoor until the clay of their courts becomes firm enough for play.

As soon as things are straightened out at Wash-Jeff, where the student body has been on a strike for about a week, Coach Bill Amos will issue a call for his spring grid drills. Right now things are not so hunky dory at the institution, what with the boys being peeved at the president and the president not being exactly tickled with the way the boys are acting.

Officials at Carnegie Tech are very much elated with the entry list for the annual scholastic relay carnival, slated for next Saturday afternoon. A year ago 19 teams competed, and this year there will be over 30. The lists closed Saturday night.

Jimmy Leonard, Carnegie Tech guard, has been selected basketball captain for the 1931-32 season. He was picked at a meeting held in Coach Buzz Hogan's home yesterday. Leonard is a junior in the School of Work's Management, and graduated from Schenley High, although he did not play the court game in high school. He was captain of the freshman quint in his first year at Carnegie, and, being only 5 feet 6 inches tall, is one of the smallest players in collegiate floor circles.

Tomorrow night, Scott High and Farrell will clash in a second-round inter-district game of the annual P. I. A. A. tournament, the winning of which brings as a prize the state basketball championship. The P. I. A. A. event is not run off with the same dispatch and efficiency as the W. P. I. A. L. event, and not as fairly, either.

Scott's play in the last quarter of the game Saturday night with Westinghouse indicated that, while the team may be tired and inclined to lethargy, it still is a championship contender and has as good a chance of galloping through to the state crown as any team in the commonwealth. Reports from the eastern part of the state have it that there is no outstanding team there, and that the entries in the middle section are no bargains, either.

It looks like Johnny Reed is in for a great year. . . . . JESS CARVER.

BRAND TOPS SCORERS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 23.—Fred Brand, Jr., Sewickley, Pa., boy and tall center of the Penn State basketball team, again led the Lions in scoring, figures on the season's games show. Fred scored 40 field goals and a like number of free throws to register 120 points.

Keeps Hair Neat

Rich-looking, Orderly

IF your hair lacks natural gloss and lustre, or is difficult to keep in place it is very easy to give it that rich, glossy, refined and . . . orderly appearance . . . so essential to well-groomed men.

Just rub a little Glostora through your hair . . . once or twice a week . . . or after shampooing, and your hair will then stay, each day . . . just as you comb it.

Glostora softens the hair and makes it pliable. Then—even stubborn hair—will stay in place of its own accord.

It gives your hair that natural, rich, well-groomed effect, instead of leaving it stiff and artificial looking as pastes do.

Glostora also keeps the scalp soft, and the hair healthy by restoring the natural oils from which the hair derives its health, life, gloss and lustre.

Try it!—See how easy it is to keep your hair combed—any style you like—whether brushed lightly or combed down flat. If you want your hair to lie down particularly smooth and tight, after applying Glostora, simply moisten your hair with water before brushing it.

Team Captain

TOM HURLEY

Star forward of the New Brighton High School basketball team, named as captain on the all-star W. P. I. A. L. aggregation selected by Jess Carver for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

ALL POSITIONS AWARDED TO NEW STARS

By JESS CARVER

Out of the buzz-saw action of the annual W. P. I. A. L. tournament, which wound up last Wednesday with the crowning of Scott High, of North Braddock, as champion, has blossomed forth a bouquet of fancy performers, as impressive and brilliant as have popped into the spotlight during the last five years.

There have been amazingly fast and clever forwards; whoopee-making centers and dazzling guards. Best of all, the majority of the shining lights have exhibited at least traces of being able to use their cocos, a very important attribute.

TEAM HAS SPEED

None of the lads awarded positions on the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's all-tournament team, presented herewith, is a repeater from last year's team. Two players who made the first squad a year ago are included on the squad, but the first five men are newcomers.

Johnny Tomko Andy Lasky

The team presented here would combine great speed with dexterity, and above all offers five men all of whom can handle a basketball as it should be handled. The lineup would not be of exceptional size, but try and catch it.

Heading a fine list of forwards are Tom Hurley (and now is as good a time as any to name the New Brighton ace captain of the team), Capt. Johnny Tomko, of Scott, and his running mate, Ferguson; Whitey Wilson, of New Kensington; Al Servick, of Duquesne; Jack Eicher, of Scottdale, and Johnny Uram, of New Castle.

Hurley and Tomko were the most consistent and, in the opinion of many critics, the more proficient pair. They were good shots, good passers, good dribblers and A-1 defensive men.

Hurley played in two games, Tomko in four, but Hurley would undoubtedly have equaled the performance of the Scott ace had he played through to the final.

Andy Lasky, a fine jumper, good shot and another speed boy, is named at the center spot over Vic Bache, of Scott, and Babe Dayoub, of New Kensington. Dayoub was the all-tourney choice a year ago.

Lasky played splendid ball against Ambridge, Monessen and Duquesne, outplaying each of the three pivot men he faced. He wasn't the tallest of the list, but he was the best at getting the tip.

Johnny Krutullis, of Scott, possibly was the outstanding performer of the tourney and easily the best bet of the guard list. Krutullis is a ball hawk of the Paul Zehfuss type, a fine shot, and moves like a flash.

STEVENSON CONSISTENT

Johnny Stevenson, of Monessen, although he only participated in two games, was steady and dependable. He directed the play of his team in very fine fashion and was on deck for his share of the scoring. He and Krutullis win the nod over other candidates, such as Susek, of New Kensington; Ortman, of Ford City; and 15-year-old star, Michaelosen, of Ambridge; Leo Malarkey, of McDonald and Durik, Duquesne's hard-working defense man.

Johnny Krutulis John Stevenson

Other men who come in for their share of the applause, but who are not named on the squad, include, Matzie, of Ambridge; Emerick, of Swissvale and Edwards, of Brownsville, forwards; Beitsch, of New Brighton and Bass of Ford City, centers; and N. Uram, of New Castle; Bell, of New Kensington; Alexandrovich, of Duquesne and Zeleska, of Monessen, guards.

Ten of the 16 tourney schools have men on either the team or the squad. Scott leads with four men placed. New Kensington is second with three, and New Castle and Duquesne two each.

If a team were being selected on individual performances for one game, the following wouldn't be so bad:

Matzie, Ambridge and Servick, Duquesne, forwards; John Rush, Scottdale, center, and Malarkey, McDonald and Krutullis, Scott, guards.

Coincident with the presentation of this all-star team this correspondent embarks on a voyage over four or five of the seven seas, and by the time he gets back, it will be time to pick some other sort of a club.

Then the trouble will start all over again.

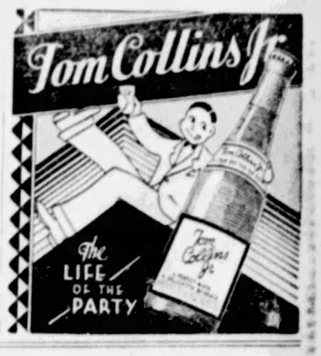
NEER NET CHAMP

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 23.—(AP.)—Philip Neer, California star, playing his usually strong and steady game, covered his court to greater tactical advantage yesterday to defeat Marcel Rainville, Montreal, Canada, 6-2, 6-1, 7-5, for the Southeastern tennis championship. Neer teamed with G. C. Shafer, New York, to defeat Rainville and F. C. Biggs, New York, in the doubles championship, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.



SEVER FARMED TO WICHITA

By Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, March 23.—Carl Sever, rookie third baseman of the Pirates, today was due to leave his San Francisco home for Wichita where he will report to Manager Art Griggs. The Pittsburgh club is interested in the Wichita team, and it is a foregone conclusion that Sever will return to the Buccos in the event of a continuance of his promising skill. He is only 17.

Harry Geissberger, Carl's pal, who was recommended by both Joe Devine and Joe Cronin, came on to Los Angeles with the Pirates. Ens likes this 18-year-old shortstop so well he will probably bring him into the East before farming him out.

The business of farming players is a bit more difficult now that the Columbia club has thrown in the sponge, but Owner Dreyfuss and Manager Ens figure they will be able to place more of their recruits.

DUNLEVY COPS SOCCER TITLE

BRIDGEVILLE BLANKED IN CUP FINAL

By TOM BIRKS

Taking advantage of its opportunities, the Dunlevy soccer team, of the Keystone League, annexed the Western Pennsylvania championship yesterday at Husher Field, Monessen defeating Bridgeville, 2 to 0. Dunlevy took two in a row of the final series, winning, 3 to 1 in the first game at Bridgeville last Sunday. The upriver club deserved to win, for Grandy's boys flashed a keen offensive, mixed well with a defense that the boys from the Speedway failed to pierce.

For Dunlevy Grandy was great, Grilli, Ross, and Paterlini also being outstanding. For Bridgeville, Frank Dakus and Smart were good. Next Sunday Dunlevy meets Morgan in the Keystone League, at Husher Field.

Berchini, playing outside right in place of Steinzel, centered well for Urbanic to head the ball past Darkus on the only score of the first half.

In the second Dunlevy appeared to be standing the fast pace better than Bridgeville, although Darkus and Smart were in splendid form and stopped Grilli repeatedly. From 30 yards, with one of the best shots of the season, Grilli placed Dunlevy 2 up, and the game was virtually in the bag. The lineup:

Dunlevy (2)		Bridgeville (0)
Dolphi	G	Darkus
Grandy	lb	Smart
Urbanic	rb
Ross	c	Cimerolli
Smith	lhb	Jablonski
Paterlini	chb	Dalzatto
Berchini	rhb	Kusko
Michosky	ol	Zinger
Grilli	il	Godfrey
Urbanic	ir	Cimerolli
Smith	or	Chiesolli

Goals—Grilli, Urbanic. Referee—Lumsden.

FALL RIVER VICTOR

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP.)—The Fall River, soccer team overwhelmed the Newark Americans, 6 to 1, in the eastern final of the national cup soccer competition yesterday. It meets the western winner, the Chicago Bricklayers, in the national final April 5.

SHAMROCKS ADVANCE

CLEVELAND, March 23.—The Cleveland Shamrocks advanced to the semi-finals of the Ohio cup competition here yesterday by defeating the All-Welsh team of the Lake Shore League, 3 to 1. The Cleveland Bruells defeated Goodyear, of Akron, 1-0, and Slavis defeated the Magyars, 4-1, in other local games.

EASTOR HERO FAVORITE

LONDON, March 23.—(AP.)—J. H. Whitney's Easter Hero was the favorite today in the call-over of betting odds on the Grand National steeplechase to be run at Aintree Friday. The American horse was at 100 to 9 against, with Sir Lindsay, his stablemate, and the British-owned steeplechaser, Ballasport, second choice at 100 to seven.

Other odds: Drintyre, 18 to 1; Drin, 18 to 1; Grakle, 18 to 1; Kakushin, 20 to 1; Shaun Goilin, last year's winner 25 to 1.

The field was reduced to 47 today, with the scratching of J. B. Snow's Delaruе.

SPORT SHORTS

CHICAGO.—(INS.)—Mickey Walker, the pugilist, has been revealed here as a potential bridegroom-to-be. This first became known when Jack Kearns, his manager, left Chicago saying he was on his way to New Jersey to be Mickey's best man. It is reported that the middleweight champ has been friendly with Clara Heiners, a Brooklyn girl, who is about 26 and goes to an art school. Walker was divorced last month. His wife got custody of his two children, $250,000 and the Walker home in Rumson, N. J.

ST. LOUIS.—(AP.)—No change was reported early today in the condition of Ban Johnson, former American League president, who is seriously ill of diabetes in St. John's Hospital here.

CHICAGO.—(AP.)—De La Salle High School, of Minneapolis, last night became the national Catholic prep basketball champion, after a slambang struggle with little Jasper (Ind.) Academy, 23 to 21.

NEW YORK.—(AP.)—The invading French tennis forces are out to capture their international team match against a strong set of American stalwarts on the next three days. Jean Borotra, who captured the national indoor singles title for the fourth time Saturday, Christian Boussus, who paired with him in winning the doubles title, and young Pierre Landry carry the tri-color in a three-day team competition along the lines of the Davis Cup matches. The competition opens tonight with the singles encounters.

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP.)—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, has announced he has purchased Outfielder Clifton Heathcote from the Chicago Cubs for cash, amount of which was not given. Heathcote is expected to start for the Reds' camp here at once.

Sport Vignettes

The Chicago Cubs boast one of the best pitching staffs in the majors this season, with Pat Malone, Charley Root, Bob Smith, Guy Bush, Freddie Blake, Osborn, Sweetland, Jake May, Jess Petty and a few others available for duty, and may be expected to go places and do things under the driving influence of Manager Rogers Hornsby . . . One of the smartest of the Bruins' moundsmen is Smith, obtained from the Boston Braves at the end of last season . . . He is a reformed shortstop who was good enough to be a consistent performer with the batting and fielding support, or lack of it, that was his heritage in Boston, and he ought to be a big winner in his new surroundings . . . One good feature about the settling of the International Hockey League race is the fact that no longer, wherever you go, will you be called upon to answer the query, "Do you think the Yellow Jackets will land a money berth?" . . . Two more weeks of blissful goofiness are before the ice sport fans as the playoff series gets under way tomorrow night.

Manager John Hernon, of Motor Square Garden, denies the fire that broke out in the East End arena the other a. m. was caused by a fan who was burning up over a punk decision . . . As a general thing, they cool off in a hurry . . . One of the most descriptive expressions in our modern language is that of the gangsters, who talk about "rubbing out" individuals who happen to cross 'em up . . . Jack Dempsey, who has refereed bouts in which Ernie Schaaf has been a principal, says it is his belief that Ernie never will be a champion because he lacks the proper coordination of mind, eye and muscle . . . He avers Ernie, who has one of the most marvelous physiques in the ring, can take a beating and knows how to fight and punch, but he is unable to take advantage of opportunities because he is slow to act, not because he necessarily is a slow thinker, but because his muscles do not respond as rapidly as they should . . . He sees the openings, but they are gone before he can take advantage of them . . . Schaaf is Jack Sharkey's man, the big Lithuanian having one of those well-known "pieces" of him.

The A. A. A. has put a ban on all board automobile speedways except the one at Altoona and they will have to run "outlaw" races, if any, this year . . . The Bridgeville plant is one of those stricken off the list, along with Woodbridge, N. J., and Akron . . . Altoona escaped the ruling because of its size . . . It is a mile and a quarter around and gives the drivers plenty of room for navigation of their cars over the bad spots . . . The answer is that board tracks break up faster than money can be made to keep them in repair, and the move of the A. A. A. is for the protection of the drivers . . . At many of the tracks holes have been torn into the driving surface large enough to permit cars to fall through . . . Incidentally, Ward Beam, promoter of races at Bridgeville the last two years, who announced his retirement from the sport following several losing ventures last season, has become imbued with new hope and is planning to operate at Chicago, Decatur, Ill., Toledo, Columbus, Cleveland and a few other spots this year . . . Once a promoter, always a promoter, it seems.

Bow Tie Kelly, who holds up the cards designating the rounds at the Moose Temple fights, was torn between two loves last Friday night, and, as a result, was missing from his familiar post . . . He also takes tickets at Duquesne Garden on hockey nights, and it happened that there was a hockey game here the same night as the fight, and he was on hand to see the Jackets close their regular schedule . . . Marty Gornick, the lightweight boxer, who generally is announced as hailing from McKeesport, where he began fighting as an amateur for the Duke O'Hara A. C., really lives in Whitaker and is employed as a clerk in the Whitaker postoffice . . . Howard Mayberry, veteran bantamweight, of Donora, who has been in retirement for some time, helped to second Johnny Warner in the latter's losing fight with Mose Butch at the Moose Temple the other night, and at the conclusion let it be known that he'd like nothing better than an opportunity to box the triumphant Butch.

The tough Paul Pirrone-Young Corbett battle in San Francisco last week drew only around $10,000, and Pirrone, who worked out with the Pirates the next day, already is thinking of returning East, where the purses are at least as large and the traveling and expenses are not as great . . . Promoter Apples Meyers, of the Moose Temple, has just made himself 100 easy smackers by selling his option on Benny Touchstone's services to the Garden for tonight's bout with Joe Sekyra . . . Apples had Touchstone matched with George Panka recently and Benny canceled because of illness, and, under the rules of the boxing commission, he could not fight in this section until he fulfilled the contract with Meyers or obtained his release, and the Garden was willing to pay for the release—HARRY KECK.

Between Rounds

The preliminaries of the three nights' Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., tournament get under way in the Moose Temple, downtown, tonight, with the eliminations continuing through tomorrow night and the finals slated on Wednesday. The entry list is a record-breaker in numbers. The winners will qualify to represent Pittsburgh in the National championships, to be decided in Madison Square Garden, New York, late next month.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, has matched Sunny Jim McVey and Buddy McArthur, light-heavyweights, for his main bout attraction Thursday night, with Mickey Suhrin, of New York City, who has spent the last few months in Florida, and Billy Flanagan, of Braddock, middleweight, in the eight-round semi-final. Bruno Sala, of Donora, who lost to McVey last week via the knockout route, will be given a place on the card.

Mickey Duris, of Johnstown, and Sammy Harris, Negro, of Akron, O., box the main bout of a show at Johnstown tonight. Jimmy Thomas, likely-looking young local Negro bantamweight, boxes Vito Mazzeo, of Cleveland, in the six-round main bout of a show in Cleveland, with Joe Trippe and Larry Madge in the semi-final. Johnny Dunn, New Kensington featherweight, opposes Manuel Castro and Frankie Porto meets Homer Ronan at Zanesville, O. Charley Brodd, McKeesport heavyweight, battles Chuck Doris at Saginaw, Mich.; Freddie Edwards and Freddie Fitzgerald clash at Canton, O., with Ted Kroez, of Monessen, and Young Joe Walcott, of Washington, Pa., in the semi-final and Joe Midway, of New Castle, and Mickey Fedor, of Donora, in another eight-rounder, and Pittsburgh Division Penitentiary and Allegheny battlers compete in System eliminations at Trenton, N. J. Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, boxes Tommy Grogan, of Omaha, in a non-title bout at the Arena, in Philadelphia.

Jack Barry, Erie promoter, was unable to line up a suitable opponent for Buck McTiernan next Friday night, and so he is planning a show to be headlined by Frankie Borjorski, of Erie, instead.

Promoter Apples Meyers, of the Moose Temple, is trying to line up an opponent for Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, in the main bout of his show at the Moose Temple Friday night. He has Al Ghan, of Columbus, and Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, in the semi-final; Tony Marino, of Duquesne, and Ace Hebe, of Cincinnati, in the second bout, and Carl Montebano, of Braddock, and Carl Cesko, of Uniontown, in the opener.

SCHOOLS HERE PLAN GOLF LEAGUE

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

A scholastic golf league, the first ever to be formed in Western Pennsylvania, is likely to be organized at a dinner and meeting tonight of district coaches of high and prep schools, in Shady Side Academy, Aspinwall.

Coach John Irwin, of Taylor Allderdice High, the prime mover in the work to start a school golf league, who organized the first team of its kind in this section, likely will preside over the confab.

Four schools placed golf teams in the field last year—Allderdice, McKeesport and Oliver high schools and Shady Side Academy. It is anticipated, with other high and prep schools interested in the movement, at least an eight-club circuit will be formed.

The dinner will start at 6:30, after which the organization meeting will be in order.

SEKYRA BOXES TOUCHSTONE

night, flooring Emmett in the first round and injuring him to such an extent that the rugged Italian had to withdrew from the match with Touchstone, Sekyra taking his place.

HAVE BOXED STARS

Between them, the two big fellows have fought many of the stars. Sekyra was the first opponent of Max Schmeling, the present heavyweight champion, in this country. Many of the New York critics credited Sekyra with winning the bout, although he lost the official decision. Others he has boxed include Johnny Risko, Leo Lomski, Matt Adgie, Joe Banovic, Charley Belanger, Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight champion; Chuck Wiggins, Jimmy Braddock, Young Stribling, who is matched to box Schmeling for the title, Yale Okun and Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion. Touchstone also has boxed Stribling, along with Ernie Schaaf, Harold Mays, Belanger, Big Boy Peterson, Leo Gates, Knute Hansen, Jimmy Byrne, Ted Sandwina and many others.

PETRONE IN SEMI-FINAL

BUCS, ANGELS OPEN SERIES

came to pass. The score of this game was 5 to 4.

POOR JUDGMENT

The former Quaker star was deadlocked with Sheriff Fred Blake, of West Virginia, as the ninth inning started. Charley Grimm hopped around the plate in mid-summer fashion and was able to coax a pass out of Claude. The Sheriff came through with a fine sacrifice, but the Pirate cause was looking up as Outfielder Moore hit an easy roller to Willoughby.

Grimm was on his way to third, but could have been stopped easily had the Pirate sharpshooter played heads-up baseball. Willoughby elected to throw to first for the second out, and Recruit Shortstop Jurges then kicked in with a snappy single past Tommy Thevenow and Lefty went over with the winning run.

Manager Hornsby used only two pitchers for the 20 innings of baseball. The Rajah is following a plan which keeps his springtime pitchers on the mound for the full distance and the method is getting results—at least it is in these barnstorming games, if that means anything. Bush worked the whole 11 rounds of the morning, while Sheriff Blake didn't yell for any help in the closing contest.

Remy Kremer swapped punches with the Sheriff through five periods before giving way to Willoughby. When Frenchy handed Claude the stick, the Pittsburghers were leading by a run and the former Phil saw another counter go over in the seventh that gave him a feeling of comfort. But Claude faltered in the seventh when clean hits by Hack Wilson and Zack Taylor brought about a deadlock.

Woodie Jensen, who had replaced Adam Comorosky in left, started the eighth for the Buccos with a single, but the needed run did not materialize. Lloyd Waner made a brave effort to drive it in from second, but Jurges worked fast on the snappy liner that snapped off Lloyd's bat.

JENSEN DOES WELL

Forest Jensen tried hard to win the morning clash in the tenth inning when the clever recruit outfielder missed fire on a home run. Woodie came up with two out and crashed a drive to the fence in right center. Three perfect relays were required to cut down the fleet Dane, but the Cubs had these throws ready to uncork. Moore ran down the ball and threw to Beck. Beck relayed to Blair and the understudy first-sacker made a fine toss to Grace, who tagged out Jensen on a close play.

The Pirates saw the victory fade again as they batted in the eleventh. Thevenow, started with an extra base hit to left, but he failed to reach third on the drive, being nailed at that base.

The Pirates bunched three hits into the first round to score a run. Meinie weakened a bit in the third, and Stephenson drove in two runs with a lucky single to left.

Stewie Clarke opened the way for a deadlock when he singled in the seventh. Clarke advanced on Suhr's out and Catcher Hal Finney spanked a single to center that scored the reserve infielder.

Mike Hall Victor At Agua Caliente In Big Upset

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., March 23.—(AP.)—Springing a decided upset, Mike Hall, of the Robert M. Eastman Stable, Chicago, won the Agua Caliente Handicap in its second renewal yesterday, and took the net first place winnings of $100,000. He defeated The Choctaw by a neck, running the mile and a quarter in two minutes, three seconds. Plucky Play was third. The winning time was one-fifth of a second better than the track record set by Victorian last year.

The big train, Sun Beau, racing for the right to be called the world's greatest money winner, was unable to stand the pace and finished far in the ruck, failing to get into the money. Alexander Pantages finished fourth.

Mike Hall paid $20.80 to win on $2 pari mutuel tickets. He paid $6 to place and $4.20 to show. The Choctaw paid $6.60 to place and $4 to show, while Plucky Play paid $14.20 to finish third.

STOCK MARKET INCLINED TO STIFFEN

List Starts Day Lower, But Shows Evidence of Firming in Afternoon

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP.)—The stock market again demonstrated its newly acquired ability to take bad news calmly.

The downward tendency which developed late last week was carried over into the early trading, and no sooner did its influence wear off than a drop in Chicago wheat to the lowest levels in 36 years prompted further selling. The list stiffened again by early afternoon, however, and prices were inclined to recover. Trading was quiet from the start.

The break in wheat on announcement that the Farm Board would not support the market for the new wheat crop was naturally a depressing influence on financial markets, but it lacked sufficient element of surprise to prompt any hasty selling of securities. The most bullish influence in Wall street at the moment seems to be the widespread feeling that the worst is known. The reduction in New York Central's dividend rate a fortnight ago has been one of the few recent surprises, although the speculative community was fully informed as to the low level of that and others carriers' earnings.

Several important dividend meetings are scheduled for this week. Postponement of the U. S. Industrial Alcohol meeting until April 2 removes one, but on Wednesday dividend meetings are scheduled for Baltimore and Ohio, Vestinghouse Electric and Northern Pacific. On Thursday directors of Anaconda, National Cash Register, Lackawanna and Liquid Carbonic are expected to decide what should be done about disbursements to stockholders. So many bearish rumors have been heard about these meetings that surprises, if any, seem more likely to be pleasant than otherwise.

Wall Street is intensely interested in the news that Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, has sailed for New York. While Federal Reserve quarters say the trip "has no special significance," Wall Street expects that he has better reasons for making a voyage than merely to pay a social call. Some observers wonder what, if any relation, his visit may have to the agitation for international action to stabilize silver.

MATCH DUMPING BAN ISSUED

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The Treasury Department has issued an anti-dumping order against match imports from Finland, Norway, Holland, Esthonia, Sweden, Latvia, Austria and Poland. Order becomes effective immediately.

The order is based on a finding that match imports from these countries are being sold at a price less than the same products are sold in the home markets.

It is contended that a fair price for matches of the safety variety is 80 cents a gross, and the Treasury found they were being sold as low as 29 cents a gross.

Youngstown Sheet Financing at Hand

New financing for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company in the form of a $25,000,000 issue of first 5 per cent bonds will be undertaken this week through a banking group headed by Bankers Company, New York.

Upon the completion of this financing, the company will have outstanding $95,000,000 first mortgage bonds, $15,000,000 of preferred stock and 1,200,000 shares of common stock.

Forbes

'Conditions Ripening for Five Day Week

—By B. C. FORBES—

"GOD MOVES in a mysterious way His wonders to perform."

Is the way being paved for the adoption of shorter working hours, a shorter working week in this country?

It would seem so.

Mr. Forbes

HOW COULD millions of people, especially those of meager education, employ a much greater amount of leisure?

That question has greatly troubled thoughtful minds interested in humanics.

Is the answer even now appearing?

CONSIDER all that is happening in the way of making life more interesting for individuals and families of moderate means.

First came the telephone, a blessing in a thousand ways.

The opening of the new century brought the automobile. Today there are in the United States enough cars to carry our whole population at one time. No need to stress what it has done to annihilate isolation, to widen social intercourse, to relieve monotony, to enrich life in every strata of humanity.

The movies—reflect how intimately they have entered into family life in this land. The daily average attendance at motion picture theaters exceeds 7,000,000. More recently the silent screen has adopted the spoken word, thus adding new interest, new fields, new possibilities to this infant art, industry and entertainment.

The phonographs brought music to myriads of homes, brightening the atmosphere and otherwise enhancing the joy of living.

THE RADIO. The imagination could not grasp all that it means to humanity. It has brought all that is most interesting in the world to the home, the humblest of homes. Out of the ether, by the slightest twist of the wrist, can be drawn entertainment or education, music or oratory, sermons or syncopation, news or nonsense, pugilism or poetry, sensationalism or sanctity; the words of Pope or royal potentate, crooning or criticism, art or Amos 'n' Andy.

NOW TELEVISION is on the way. I stepped into a tiny room in the American Telephone Company building in downtown New York, and in the twinkling of an eye I saw my wife in a building farther uptown. We talked to each other and saw each other as distinctly as if we had been in the same room. Every gesture, even the movement of an eyelash, was plain.

What television will by and by mean to the world cannot be fully visioned. The day is not very far distant when it will be as easy to see distant scenes as it now is to hear distant sounds over the radio. Presumably we will be able to sit at home and watch the most exciting events in any part of the continent—perhaps in any part of the world.

DOES IT not begin to appear that these and other developments will make it possible for the great mass of individuals and families in this country to occupy greater leisure interestingly, profitably, thrillingly?

By the time the six hour or seven hour day and the five day week come into general vogue, may it not be that social conditions will be ready and ripe for the change?

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

28TH DIVISION'S 'FINE COURAGE' BRINGS PRAISE

against heavy machine gun fire, and the following day was relieved by the 82d Division. For 12 days it had faced the almost impregnable defenses of the Aire with fine courage and endurance, and had well earned a rest.

Although the continued operation of these two divisions was attended by severe fighting, the results were immediate. The enemy was forced to withdraw from that region, the Argonne Forest was cleared, and the 77th Division was enabled to advance to the relief of its "Lost Battalion." It then pushed on to the north in pursuit of the retreating enemy.

Make Important Gains

Gen. Claudel's French 17th Corps, east of the Meuse, attacked October 8 with the object of seizing the heights northwest of Beaumont. At that time it consisted of two French and two American divisions, the 33rd and 29th, making the corps in numerical strength two-thirds American.

Though opposed by strong German resistance, the assault was successfully directed by Gen. Claudel, and our lines were advanced during the next few days to the commanding ground between Beaumont and Richene Hill.

In a well-conducted operation, the 33rd Division (Bell) crossed the Meuse early October 8 by bridges constructed during the night, captured Consenvoye, and progressed up the neighboring slopes. The following day a further advance was made, but heavy fire from the Borne de Cornouiller and the failure of the troops on the right to keep up forced a retirement to the morning line. This ground was retaken, despite strong resistance, and by night of the 10th the division had established itself on the west slopes of Richene Hill.

The 58th Brigade of the 29th Division (Morton), under command of the French 18th Division, against considerable opposition pushed forward into the woods south of Richene Hill on the 8th, and during the next two days completed the capture of those woods. On the 11th, the 29th Division took command of its 58th Brigade. Its 57th Brigade, still under the French 18th Division, on the 12th made important gains in the Bois d'Ormont.

This advance of the French 17th Corps deprived the enemy of many important observation points and battery positions. The main purpose of the attack, however, was to increase the fighting front of the army and thus engage and consume the maximum number of German divisions.

Continue Advances

In this latter respect the attack was particularly successful, aimed as it was directly at the pivot of the German line on the Western Front. From this time on until the armistice the threat in this region forced the enemy to maintain east of the Meuse at least two additional divisions.

The narrowness of the ridge east of and parallel to the Meuse River and the difficulty of the terrain limited the number of troops that could be employed there. This restriction, coupled with the heavy hostile artillery fire directed from the vicinity of Romagne-sous-les-Cotes and from north of Damvillers, prevented a deeper advance or the clearing of the heights of the Meuse until we were able to attack from south of Dun-sur-Meuse as originally planned.

In conjunction with the operations by the French 17th Corps, the 5th Corps (Cameron) attacked in force October 9 and continued its efforts the next two days. The 3d Division (Buck) progressed on the 9th, and after fierce fighting seized Madeleine Farm, which had previously proved a stumbling block, and partly cleared the Bois de Cunel. The following day it completed the capture of that wood and on the 11th extended its gains to the northwest.

The 32d Division (Haan) reached Romagne October 9 and penetrated the enemy trenches on Cote Dame Marie on the 10th, but was driven from the latter and established its lines on the southern slopes of the hill.

The 91st Division (Johnston), on the left of the 32d Division, fought all day on the 9th for Hill 255, suffering heavy casualties, and the following day occupied the position. The advance then continued until stopped on Hill 288 and the Cote Dame Marie. The division was relieved the night of October 11.

80th Pushes Ahead

The 1st Division (Summerall), in a resolute attack, captured the difficult enemy positions on and near Hill 272 on the 9th, and established its line on the 10th north of the Cote de Maldah. It also was relieved on the 11th. During the operations of the 9th and 10th, the 181st Brigade (John B. McDonald) of the 91st Division was attached to the 1st Division, being transferred to the 32d Division on the night of the 10th.

The advance of the 3rd Corps (Bullard) was bitterly contested by the enemy, but October 10 the 4th Division (Hines) fought its way forward beyond the Cunel-Brieulles road. Two determined assaults against the Bois de Peut de Faux were broken up, but on the third attempt the northern edge of that wood was attained. The division gained the far side of the Bois de Foret on the 11th against severe opposition.

Gen. Hines

The 80th Division (Cronkhite), on the ninth, in the face of very heavy fire, pushed forward to a short distance north of the Bois des Ogons. The division's attacks continued, and when relieved two days later it had reached a line slightly south and east of Cunel.

On the front of the 1st Corps (Liggett), the opposition encountered on the tenth was less determined, and the 82d Division (Duncan), by midnight had established its line beyond Marcq, while the line of the 77th Division (Alexander), ran westward from there.

On the eleventh, however, the fighting was severe, yet the 82d, regardless of heavy casualties, advanced to a position north of Sommerance. This town, though in the sector of the 1st Division, was occupied by the 82d to protect its own flank.

The night of October 11 our line ran from east to west roughly as follows: Molleville Farm—Bois de la Cote Lemont—part of Bois de Foret—south of Cote Dame Marie—Sommerance—Grandpre.

Yanks With British

While these operations on our First Army front were in progress, the 30th Division of the Second Corps (Read) attacked October 8, as part of the British 4th army, aiding materially in the general advance of that army. The attack, although meeting considerable opposition, was successful, and the progress continued three days. When relieved the night of the eleventh, the 30th Division had driven the enemy back seven miles and had reached the Selle River.

In the series of attacks which began October 7 and continued up to the 12th, the enemy contested every inch of ground, and much close fighting occurred. Our troops were engaged in some of the most difficult and bitter fighting on the Western Front, advancing through dense woods, over hills and across deep ravines against the Germans holding on to this vital sector, with a skill equaled only by that of the French in their defense of Verdun in 1916. Yet all our corps advanced their lines, the Fifth capturing elements of the Hindenburg Line, which our troops were now facing.

Early in the Meuse-Argonne offensive most of the French air division was withdrawn from the First Army front. This considerably reduced our aviation strength, and the German fliers began to do more serious damage to our troops. Therefore it was necessary to concentrate our attention on the enemy's aviation and to make every effort to obtain superiority.

American Fliers Heroic

The tendency of our air force at first was to attach too much significance to flights beyond the enemy's lines in an endeavor to interrupt his communications. However, this was of secondary importance during battle, as aviators were then expected to protect and assist our ground troops. In other words, they were to drive off hostile planes and procure for the infantry and artillery information concerning the enemy's movements.

The best results were not obtained until we sent additional aviators to serve awhile with the infantry and study the problem from its point of view. Selected infantry and artillery officers were also sent to fly with air pilots. Once in command of the air, the enemy's artillery and ground troops became the object of their attacks.

Individually, our aviators were unsurpassed in boldness, in fortitude and in skill. These daring fliers who fought their opponents in the air vied with their fearless comrades of the infantry who grappled with the enemy on foot. Men of both arms left a record of heroic deeds that will remain a brilliant page in the annals of warfare.

OFFICIAL U. S. ARMY PICTURE OF THE AREA IN WHICH FAMED "LOST BATTALION" FOUGHT

Memoirs of Marshal Foch

The Third Phase

The third phase of the Meuse-Argonne operations began October 14. During the previous phase, important gains had been made along the whole front against increasing intensity of resistance. The retirement of the enemy in front of the Allies to the west, which was being accelerated by our persistent gains in the east, indicated clearly that he was trying to save himself from complete disaster, which it was urgent that we should strive all the more vigorously to hasten.

The enemy's strong defenses in the Bois de Romagne and the Bois de Bantheville had to be reduced before further considerable progress could be made. To the west of Romagne heights we faced the strongly fortified position which included Cote de Chatillon, Landras-et-St. Georges, St. Juvin, Bois des Loges and Grandpre.

(a) The French 17th Corps, under our army, was to continue its offensive east of the Meuse River.

(b) The 3d and 5th Corps with fresh divisions (the 5th and 42d), were to drive salients through the hostile positions on both flanks of the Bois de Romagne and of the Bois de Bantheville.

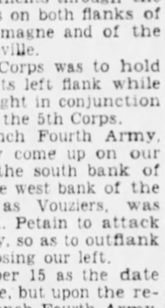
(c) The 1st Corps was to hold the enemy on its left flank while advancing its right in conjunction with the left of the 5th Corps.

(d) The French Fourth Army, which had now come up on our left, and held the south bank of the Aire and the west bank of the Aisne as far as Vouziers, was ordered by Gen. Petain to attack on the same day, so as to outflank the enemy opposing our left.

We set October 15 as the date for this offensive, but upon the request of the French Fourth Army, which intended to attack on the fourteenth, our arrangements were changed to conform with theirs.

The order of battle in the Meuse-Argonne was now, from right to left, the French 17th Corps east of the Meuse, with the French 10th Colonial, 26th, 18th and American 29th (Morton), and 33d (Bell), divisions; west of the Meuse the 3rd Corps (Hines), with the 4th Division (Cameron), 3d (Buck), and 5th (McMahon); then the 5th Corps (Summerall), with the 32d Division (Haan), and 42d (Menoher); and on the left the 1st Corps (Dickman), with the 82d Division (Duncan), and the 77th (Alexander). On the front of our offensive the enemy had the equivalent of 24 divisions actually in the front line.

Our attacks on the 14th, 15th and 16th in conjunction with Gouraud's French 4th Army met violent opposition, especially at the beginning, and although ground was often taken and retaken several times, our lines were steadily pushed forward.



Gen. King

East of the Meuse, in the French 17th Corps the 65th Brigade (Edward L. King), of the 33d Division, had made some progress, and the 29th Division, despite the difficult terrain and severe casualties, had entered woods north of Molleville Farm.

The 3rd Corps was held up by heavy machine gun and artillery fire from the Boise de Bantheville and the Bois des Rappes, in spite of precautions to neutralize these localities. The 4th Division remained inactive during this period.

The 3rd Division made a small gain west of the Bois de Foret and cleaned up the eastern edge of the wood north of Cunel in conjunction with the 5th Division, but could make no headway northward.

The 5th Division, in the face of intense fire on its front and flanks, on the 14th reached the top of the slopes northeast of Romagne and cleared the wood north of Cunel. Elements of the division pushed through to the northern edge of the Bois des Rappes, but were withdrawn.

Capture Vital Position

By dint of the superior determination of our troops, the enemy's lines were broken at a vital point by the Fifth Corps.

Unstinted praise must be given the 32d Division, which, notwithstanding heavy losses, October 14 brilliantly captured Cote Dame Marie, perhaps the most important strong point of the Hindenburg Line on the Western Front.

The town of Romagne and the eastern half of Bois de Romagne were also taken by this division on that day, while on the following day its line was advanced about a mile to the southern edge of the Bois de Bantheville.

The 42nd Division fought aggressively against the most obstinate defense, forcing its way through the western half of Bois de Romagne, its 84th Brigade (Douglas MacArthur) scaling the precipitous heights of the Cote de Chatillon and carrying its line on beyond that position. The desperate resistance on the left of the division, south of St. George and Landres-et-St. Georges, however, could not be overcome.

Gen. MacArthur

The advance of the 1st Corps was to a large extent dependent upon that of the 5th Corps, the left of which had been held up. The 82nd Division on the right of the 1st Corps, attacked October 14 and pushed forward to north of the St. Juvin-St. Georges road, but the next two days had only slight success. The 77th Division forced a crossing of the Aire River October 14, and captured St. Juvin.

The following day it moved against Grandpre, and after an all-day attempt occupied the island south of the town. The 16th the southern part of Grandpre was reached, but all attempts to take the northern part of the town were repulsed. The division was then relieved by the 78th.

The importance of these operations can hardly be over-estimated. The capture of the Romagne heights, especially its dominating feature, Cote Dame Marie, was a decisive blow.

We now occupied the enemy's strongest fortified position on that front and flanked his line on the Aisne and the Heights of the Meuse. Unless he could recapture the positions we held, our successes would compel the enemy to retreat from his lines to the north, as we were within heavy artillery range of his railroad lines.

Trading Prospects in Management Trusts

By GEORGE B. SNYDER

JUST AS THE STOCKS of management investment trusts suffered to a greater extent during the market break than other types of issues, they may be expected to have an almost corresponding rise in value during the next bull market. This possibility has been responsible for the recommendation of management trusts as interesting speculative possibilities by many brokers and investment organizations.

The management type of investment trust has suffered from three distinct situations since the summer of 1929. First of all, the price of every stock has declined. Second, too high a value was given to management. This has been responsible for the fact that instead of selling at a premium, most trusts are quoted at a discount. Third, the capital structures of most management trusts emphasized the effect of the break in market on the stocks of investment companies.

Effects of Pyramids

IN ORDER TO SIMPLIFY the problem, let us assume that an investment trust held $15,000,000 worth of stocks before the break. If the trust had $5,000,000 of bonds or other senior securities outstanding, a value of $10,000,000 would be left for the common stock.

If the stocks held by this trust depreciated 50 per cent in value during the bear market, its holdings would be worth $7,500,000. After deducting the value of the senior securities, this would leave a net worth of $2,500,000 for the common, or a depreciation of 75 per cent.

When the investment trusts were at the height of their popularity, most of their stocks were selling at a premium of about 25 per cent over their actual values. On this basis, the common stock of our supposed investment trust, if worth $100, would be quoted at $125 a share before the break. The stocks of management trusts were selling at a discount of about 20 per cent at the close of 1930. This would make the same stock, with an equity of $25 a share, worth about $20 on the market after the break. In other words, with a drop in the underlying holdings of 50 per cent, the common stock of our investment trust dropped from $125 a share to $20 a share.

Possibilities for the Future

AS WE HAVE SEEN, the existence of bonds or other types of senior securities ahead of the common stock worked like a lever and accentuated the effect of the decline in the value of stocks on the value of investment trust stocks. Obviously, when the trend of the stock market is in an upward direction, the effect will also be increased.

If the price of underlying stocks should increase by one-third from the prices at the end of 1930, the value of the underlying stocks in our trust would increase from $7,500,000 to $10,000,000. After deducting $5,000,000 for our senior securities, $5,000,000 would be left for the common stock, an increase of 100 per cent.

If the common stock of our trust should sell at its actual value, instead of at a premium or a discount, it would be worth $50 a share after this advance in the underlying stocks took place.

In other words, the advance of one-third in the value of the underlying stocks, would be reflected in an increase of 100 per cent in the equity of the common stock of this trust or an increase of 150 per cent in the market value of the stock as compared with prices at the close of 1930.

Results Will Vary

NATURALLY THE RESULTS from management trusts actually in existence will vary widely with their holdings and their capital structures, but the example gives an indication of the effect of market changes on the values of trusts with either bonds of preferred stock ahead of their issues of common stock. The fact that many trust stocks are selling at a discount from the values of their holdings is another important influence.

The combination of these situations has been responsible for the recommendations by many brokers and investment counsel that management trust common stocks are attractive at present levels. Of course, this advice is based on the theory that the liquidation in the stock market is practically over and that a bull market will develop within a few months.

Demand for Lumber Exceeds Production

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Reports from 792 leading hard and softwood lumber mills to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association indicate that new business received at these mills during the week ended March 14 called for a footage approximately 9 per cent in excess of the cut.

These mills gave their production as 208,141,000 feet, representing no marked increase in the recent low volume of cut. Shipments were also reported as 9 per cent more than the cut.

Margaret in Quandary Over Peculiar Situation

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The lights were lowered. The curtain went up, and the play went on. Margaret watched it unseeingly save for those brief periods when the woman billed as Diana Hackett was on the stage. Then the brown eyes were keen and the slim, fine body tense.

When, very late, they were motoring home:

"Have you made up your mind?" Mathews asked her.

"Not yet," she said with a sigh that was half a sob. But she had lied to him for the first time in her life. She had made up her mind.

Peter let them in and told them that Mr. Travers and Miss Delight had not yet returned.

"I won't stay," Mathews told her. "You're dead tired. Sleep on it, Margaret, and do," he said again, "what you will know to be right."

Reviews Facts

He touched her hand and went back to the waiting car which would take him home, settling back in the corner, relaxed, a troubled and lonely man, feeling his age and his inadequacy to help the one person he loved above anything on earth, in this emergency.

Margaret Lorrimer went up to bed, dismissed her waiting maid, undressed and lay between cool sheets in the spring darkness, thinking, planning.

She was a mother. She was, therefore, where her son's vital happiness was concerned, an entirely unscrupulous woman. She would sacrifice anything and anybody to Travers Lorrimer's health and welfare. She was entirely convinced that, confronted with the truth, brought together again with the Delight Harford he had known and loved, as a boy, the man he had become could never adjust himself, could never find happiness. Many years had passed. Surely the woman she had seen on the stage tonight was a different person from the girl met on a London leave and loved with the desperate and tragic gayety and ardor of war time. The years must have brought many things to that girl, changes, alterations in circumstances; must have built up for her an entirely dissimilar background. She must now be as far apart from what she had been as the moon from the earth.

Besides, there was Mary Lou Lorrimer loved her, deeply, thinking her the lost Delight, but loved her, surely, in her own person, and for herself. And it was perfectly obvious to Mrs. Lorrimer that Mary Lou, in her turn, was in love with Lorrimer. If this illusion of a marriage could be cleared up—and she had never believed in it, herself — surely when Travers learned the truth his love for Mary Lou would have put forth such roots that it would stand unshaken and he would forgive them all for the deception—would understand. A few months ago, he couldn't have understood, in his condition of irritable nerves and unhappy memories. But he was a normal man now, clear thinking, sane, happy, healthy. Love, instead of narrowing his interests, had widened them. For no known interest in life he had substituted, not only Mary Lou, but the normal interests of his sex, age, circumstances and personal likes—books, horses, the business of managing a great estate, friends—such as the gallant little Mac, waging his valiant battle with disease—flying, social contacts. He had been brought to think not only of himself but of other people, other things.

Surely he would understand, now.

There must be some way, Margaret thought, to find out from Delight if there had been a marriage. Perhaps this could be accomplished, possibly through Larry, without the woman's discovering anything. Larry had already made a friendly contact with her; he might ask her certain questions with careful casualness. And if, as Margaret believed and hoped, no such claim existed, she could wait until the girl was out of the country before confronting Lorrimer with the truth—or at least part of it.

Willing to Help Girl

The part she could tell him would be merely that Mary Lou was not the girl he had known; that whatever his delusion on the subject, that girl had never been his wife. That that girl no longer, in a manner of speaking, existed; but that Mary Lou—did.

If, however, she thought rapidly and feverishly, if, by any unfortunate chance, Delight Harford found out that Lorrimer was alive and realized toward what Larry's questionings were leading, perhaps she could be induced to leave New York. Money would do a lot, and money would be provided.

Even if he had not married this stranger, he had loved her. Boy's love, war-leave love. But one couldn't dismiss it so lightly, perhaps. He'd learned suffering through it. Of course, she argued with herself, had he been quite normal, on his return home he might soon have forgotten, the memory would have faded. It was his mental and physical condition which had caused him to cling to that memory as the one worthwhile thing in life, the lost Delight.

Well, thought Margaret, wearily, even if Delight Harford left the country, unknowing and unsuspecting, something could be done for her, some tribute paid. Money could arrange anything, through trusted lawyers, agents. Back in London some unknown "backer" could be provided for her, she should be given her chance, she need never know the real source of the financial help.

Thinking of this, the conscience which had stirred a little was drugged to sleep again. She'd help the girl. She was perfectly willing to do so, to do anything for her save bring her into contact with her son again.

Mary Lou Confesses

Of course, had this marriage taken place, all these plans would be of no avail. Yet perhaps Delight Harford could be bought off—induced to communicate with Lorrimer demanding a release? Oh, whatever way her thoughts turned she found obstacles arising, questions, impasses. Her head was hot and heavy with thinking. Flashes of clear-sightedness came to her in which she hated herself. She had been, all her life, a very [illegible]orable person. She had [illegible] despised, in others, dis[illegible]vasions, trickiness, injustice. And she found herself descending to all of these. That there was one thing to do which was straight and right and honorable she knew. And that was to see Delight Harford, hear her story, make proper investigations and, if she had married Travers, welcome her to Westwood House as his wife; if not, welcome her as the girl he had loved, the girl to whom he had been engaged.

Knowing her son, she knew that even that long-ago relationship would constitute a claim that the girl would be perfectly free—and certainly wise—to press.

He kissed me, confessed Mary Lou.

But she could not induce herself to set her feet upon the plain, straightaway course. In this emergency she was perfectly willing, even eager, to remold her character to something undreamed of—in order to salvage what she was absolutely certain was her boy's happiness.

Toward dawn, that dark, still period, with the spring stars still shining gallantly in the arched sky, Margaret heard Travers and Mary Lou come in. When she heard the girl moving quietly about her own room, she rose, slipped on a warm velvet robe and slippers and going to the connecting doors, knocked.

Mary Lou was still in the peach-colored dress. Her eyes were bright with excitement, but the red mouth drooped at the tucked-in corners.

"I tried not to wake you," she said, self-reproachfully.

Margaret sat down in a low chair and took a cigaret case and matches from her pocket. She was wide awake, her arm ached, her head was on fire, but her hands and feet felt deathly cold.

"I was awake," she answered. "You look sweet, my dear. Did you have a happy time?"

"Yes— No—" replied Mary Lou, striving after honesty.

"Tell me—" urged the older woman.

"But you—? Did you see her? What did you think?" Mary Lou began almost hysterically. She had longed to see Margaret Lorrimer, to hear, from her own lips, of this other woman—yet dreaded to see her, too.

"Yes. That can wait. Did anything happen tonight? Why are you so troubled?" asked Margaret.

Mary Lou sat down on the footstool beside the low chair. She raised her clear, tired eyes to Margaret's and was brave enough not to turn them away.

"Something will have to be done shortly," she said, slowly. "I can't keep it up much longer. He—he asked me again tonight, said he had been patient, urged me to make up my mind. He'll have to know," said Mary Lou, a little wildly, "and I must go away, where he'll never see me again. He won't care," she said, with bitterness, "once he knows the truth. He won't ever want to see me. I was a fool tonight," she said, "I couldn't help it. He—kissed me," confessed Mary Lou, "and I," she added, defiantly, "I—let him, I kissed him back."

Mrs. Lorrimer flushed. In a way, she would rather not hear that confession. Yet there was in her none of the dark jealousy of the wrong sort of mother. If everything had been clear sailing before this girl and Lorrimer, Lorrimer's mother would have rejoiced with them. And for Mary Lou's absolute integrity she had nothing but humble admiration; for the girl herself, genuine affection. Mary Lou needn't, Margaret realized, have told. Yet she did tell, and revealed her own emotions to the other woman, confident that she owed her such clarity.

"I'm sorry," Margaret said, inadequately.

"I was glad!" Mary Lou told her in a little voice. "Oh, you know I care for him," she said, unhappily, "and that's why I must get away—anywhere, so that I'll never have to see him again!"

DAILY TRUE STORY— 'Oh You!'

The carnival was in full blast in Furnace City.

In Furnace City they never said "full swing" or "full force," it was always "full blast." The word described it better.

Ken Sangus and Olga Werth met in front of the postoffice, as usual.

Olga was hoping that Mr. Jolland, the gorgeous traveling salesman for the Gasper Tobacco Company, would be in town, but he didn't arrive, so Olga did what she considered to be the next best thing—she went down to the postoffice and met Ken.

"Th' carnival's down on the baseball corner," Ken said. "Let's go down and laugh at them apes who spend their coin and expect to get something for nothing."

"Sure," Olga agreed, "and I'm going to roll them balls on that funny board until I get a big baby doll."

Ken looked at her.

"You're twenty, ain't you?"

"Sure," Olga said, slipping two sticks of gum in her mouth.

"It's time you married me, Olga, and quit thinking about dolls, except perhaps to win one and put it away for our kids."

"Oh you, Ken Sangus—I suppose you think that's funny."

Losing Interest

"If we get married, which is just what we are goin' to do, it'll be funny if there ain't any kids."

"Oh you!" Olga said, but she mumbled it because of the gum.

Ken was boss of No. Four furnace and pulled down good money. Of course, he wore burned and iron-dust impossible clothes while at work and he couldn't get the grime all out of his hands. Also when he had a haircut he had his neck shaved, and his idea of dressing up was to wear a pink shirt, blue suit and yellow shoes. He preferred a pipe to cigarets and at the movies he used to audibly repeat the titles. Now, with the talkies, he merely listened and now and then said, "That's tellin' 'em."

Sam Jolland, who came every other week to Furnace City, looked just like a picture of a swell in some magazine. And he had a fancy line of talk. When he would say to Olga, "Babe, you burn me up," she was thrilled, and when he would tell her that he was going to take her down Broadway just to knock the other dames cold, she believed him.

They sauntered down to the carnival grounds, Olga chewing her gum audibly and Ken puffing at his pipe.

When they came to the booth of "Claryo the Seeress," they paused to look at the stuffed owl, the palm diagram and the big glass crystal placed outside to attract attention.

"I'm gonna find out what she's got to tell me," Olga said.

"Don't waste your coin, kid. I know what she'll tell you," Ken said.

"Yeah? What?"

"She'll tell you you're gonna marry a party who looks like me, and that it will be within three weeks."

"Don't be so sure," Olga replied.

"Sure I'm sure, Olga. That wet smack Jolland, the traveling salesman, who smokes perfumed cigarets and wears sissy clothes and hands you girls here a line of gab he gets out of th' funny magazine, is gonna get a crimp put in his neck th' next time he comes to town—so just forget him and be gettin' some weddin' clothes together."

Tells Fortune

"Oh you!" she answered, her face getting a little pink. She didn't know that Ken was wise to Sam Jolland, the traveling salesman.

"Claryo the Seeress," was just inside the canvas booth, her eyes to a little peephole, during this conversation. Claryo, often got an amazing amount of advance information in this manner.

"Come on," Ken said.

"I'm gonna find out what she can tell me," Olga stubbornly insisted.

"She'll tell you you're gonna marry the bird who has charge of Number Four furnace and pulls down his eighty bucks a week. Go to it if you want to," and Ken handed her some money. He disliked being considered a tightwad.

Claryo glanced up.

"Your name," she said, "is Olga. Sit down and I will tell you things," and she held out her own palm for the coin.

"Ah," said Claryo in a clear penetrating voice. She had a correct hunch that the young man would be standing close to the canvas flap serving as a door, with his ears doing their stuff to catch any word.

"You are in love."

Olga giggled.

"But you haven't the sense to love the right man. The right man for you to love earns a lot of money, as much as $80 a week. He's on the level and he is smart. He has something to do with furnaces."

"Gosh," Olga said.

"You are like a lot of silly girls, in love with a vaseline hair-comb and a pair of creased trousers. You think a traveling salesman is pretty fine; you don't know enough to know that traveling salesmen are like sailors, do you?"

Ken moved away and was industriously lighting his pipe and trying to hide a grin when Olga came out.

The next week Olga told Ken that she didn't feel well enough to go to a movie; she said she was going to bed. Instead, she went to ride with Sam Jolland in his car. It didn't matter to Olga that the name of the Gasper Tobacco Company was painted all over the car.

Ken wasn't being fooled for a moment. He trailed along with a friend and saw Jolland turn into a wood road. Ken got out and went in afoot.

He soon came up to where Jolland had parked his car and he heard a loud squeal from Olga. Ken made a rush to save her, but Olga didn't need saving at all.

"You cheap little pup," Ken heard her say and then he saw her grab Sam Jolland and shake him.

Ken sauntered up and Olga saw him.

"Oh, Ken, give him a beating," Olga said, going to him.

Falls for Tip

"You've crippled him for life and I don't hit cripples," Ken said, "although I was gonna slap his ears down."

Ken went over to Jolland, who was trying to get into his car.

"Lissen," Ken said. "I ain't no hard feelin's against you, you poor monkey, and I'm gonna give you a tip—keep right on drivin' to some other town, because your wife is back at th' hotel. I was comin' out to warn you."

"Thanks," Jolland said. "It was swell of you to tip me," and he turned his car around, drove out to the main road and headed to the west.

"How did you know his wife was at the hotel, Ken?" Olga asked.

"I didn't. But I thought it was a good idea to tell him that, so if he had a wife he'd beat it."

"Oh you!" Olga cried.

"What was he doin' to you, kid?"

"He give me an awful—er—familiar hug," Olga said, her cheeks burning at the memory of it.

"Like this?" Ken asked, adding a kiss to his awfully familiar hug.

"Oh you" said Olga, and she giggled contentedly.

Customary Reflections

GEORGE I JUST CAN'T GET OVER HOW LIGHT-HEARTED I AM SINCE NIMROD AND SWEET LITTLE LUCILLE ARE GONE. WHEN I LOOK BACK IT'S JUST IMPOSSIBLE TO UNDERSTAND WHY I DIDN'T GO ALL TO PIECES AFTER THEY WERE HERE THE FIRST WEEK.
BOTH OF OUR NERVOUS SYSTEMS HAVE BEEN TOUGHENED, I GUESS, BY VISITS FROM OTHER RELATIVES.
I KNOW IT SOUNDS SILLY BUT I RAISED MY EYEBROWS SO OFTEN AT THAT COUPLE.... ESPECIALLY AT THINGS SHE SAID, THAT I FEEL AS THOUGH MY FACE HAD A SORT OF PERMANENT WAVE IN IT.
ONE GOOD THING - IF ANY - ABOUT RELATIVES IS THE WONDERFUL WAY YOU FEEL WHEN THEY LEAVE.
I LOOK AT LEAST TEN YEARS YOUNGER TODAY THAN I DID A WEEK AGO. WHAT A LIFE THAT WAS. MOST OF THE TIME I WAS SO ON EDGE THAT I FELT AS THOUGH I WANTED TO STAND ON MY HEAD AND SCREAM AT THE TOP OF MY VOICE.
OH WELL, SUCH IS LIFE. I'VE ALWAYS BEEN VERY FATALISTIC ABOUT VISITS FROM RELATIVES.
EVERYONE HAS TROUBLE WITH RELATIVES BECAUSE MOST OF THEM ARE EXACTLY LIKE NIMROD AND DELICATE LUCILLE. WHO FEELS HERSELF SO SUPERIOR TO OTHERS.
WELL, IN SPITE OF EVERYTHING I'VE ALWAYS BEEN WILLING TO ADMIT THAT RELATIVES ARE PUT HERE FOR SOME GOOD REASON. SUCH FOR INSTANCE AS POISON IVY AND EARTHQUAKES AND SO FORTH?

MEN WITHOUT CHINS

Each day the public prints proclaim
A vast amount of sin sans shame—
You'd think the din of brazen sin
Would wake us from the sleep we're in—
But no—we are, alas, just sheep,
Content, it seems, to eat and sleep—
When someone dips into our purse,
We fret but rarely storm and curse;
Perhaps the crooks have robbed the nation
Of its sense of indignation,
Perhaps we've grown so mild and meek
Instinctively we turn our cheek,
They'd sock us on the chins, no doubt,
But chins, it seems, we're born without.

Municipal Extravagance

Taxpayers' Patience Is Almost Exhausted, and Council Would Do Well to Heed Grievances.

The Building Owners and Managers' Association showed City Council more than a year ago how important economies and increased efficiency could be effected in the management of the City-County Building, the Diamond Market and other municipal buildings.

The report was prepared by experts in building management—the men who operate the downtown office buildings—and they devoted considerable time to the study.

Council pigeon-holed the report.

The association, still patient, has again asked for a hearing, for the purpose of presenting a plan by which a saving of $250,000 a year may be effected in the management of the municipal buildings.

Council has agreed to listen to the plan. The taxpayers will expect the hearing to be followed by action. Patience is almost exhausted. The people are in no mood to acquiesce in continuance of the extravagance that is charged by the Building Owners and Managers' Association, who assert the municipal buildings are over-staffed and under-serviced by incompetent but highly paid employes.

Ideal for Gliding

Pittsburgh's Hills and Rivers May Help to Win City Recognition in Aeronautics.

Augustine Haller, the Pittsburgh youth who won the distance championship in the national glider race at Elmira, N. Y., last year, is circulating a prospectus for bringing the competition to Pittsburgh in 1931. The document presents facts that are well worth the attention of all who are interested in the promotion of Pittsburgh's commercial welfare.

It is pointed out that while the topography of this region is none too favorable for the operation of motor-driven airplanes, as was shown by the difficulty in finding suitable landing fields, our hills and valleys are ideal for gliding.

Gliding is coming more and more into favor as preliminary training for aviators. It is a comparatively inexpensive sport, can be learned more quickly than the piloting of an airplane, and is less dangerous.

Gliding promises to become more and more popular, and if Pittsburgh should secure the national competition this year and induce the National Gliding Association, which is seeking a permanent home, to establish its headquarters in Pittsburgh, the way would be paved for glider manufactures.

The arguments of the prospectus are impressive, and it is gratifying to learn the Chamber of Commerce is considering them sympathetically.

Our Alert Physicians

Pittsburgh Doctors Keep Abreast of the Latest Developments in Their Profession.

Five hundred physicians attended a meeting of the Allegheny County Medical Society last week at which movies illustrating recent developments in medical science were presented.

There was exhibited a film made at St. Margaret's Hospital, showing the life cycle of the maggot and its beneficial influence in the treatment of chronic bone inflammation.

Another film was a "talkie" demonstrating a method of performing the Caesarean operation which has reduced maternal mortality in such cases to less than one per cent. It was said the pictures, taken from a point directly above the operating table, gave a better view of the operation than could have been had by an observer standing beside the table.

The use of these modern methods of demonstration and the keenness of the interest shown by the physicians bear witness to the alertness of the local doctors.

There is satisfaction in the knowledge that they are ever on the watch for new discoveries, and quick to avail themselves of such as are of proved merit.

Wagner's Rightful Place

Republican Gets Chairmanship of Unemployment Relief Committee Advocated by Democrat.

Senators Glenn, of Illinois, and Hebert, of Rhode Island, both Republicans, with Democratic Senator Wagner, constitute a special committee appointed pursuant to a resolution INTRODUCED BY SENATOR WAGNER, providing for a study and comparison of all systems of unemployment insurance in this country and abroad.

According to the long established and unvarying usage of the Senate, the chairmanship of this committee should have gone to Senator Wagner.

THE RESOLUTION WAS DRAWN BY HIM, INTRODUCED BY HIM, EXPLAINED AND DEFENDED BY HIM IN THE SENATE, AND FINALLY PASSED AS THE RESULT OF HIS ADVOCACY AND DILIGENT PRESSURE.

It is the fruit of his studies.

It represents the thought and judgment of one, who has acquired a broad familiarity with the subject, upon which he speaks with a degree of authority WHICH NO OTHER MEMBER OF THE SENATE ENJOYS.

Having the additional vote to elect one of themselves chairman of the committee, Glenn voted for his Republican colleague, AND THE LATTER VOTED FOR HIMSELF.

Senator Wagner is thus cut off and detached from work of his own conception, in which he has already won the attention and approval of the country.

And in his place we find a chairman who represents NOT WAGNER'S ENLIGHTENED INTEREST in the subject and his demonstrated ardor to achieve something tangible and helpful, BUT THE SULLEN DISSYMPATHY of the Republican party with any sincere proposal looking to unemployment relief, if it is not of Republican origin.

In other words, it is the Republican party which, as President Hoover put it, "is playing politics with human misery."

BIRTH OF A SCIENCE

By Archibald Henderson

The invention of the spectroscope, which dates from the year 1859, marks the beginning of the immensely important branch of science known as astrophysics. This instrument has proven revolutionary in widening and deepening our knowledge of the universe as a whole. Secrets which seemed entirely beyond our ken have been disclosed to us in a truly remarkable way. Light, heat, and radiation have come to be recognized as playing roles of the first importance in the mechanism of the material universe.

Sir Isaac Newton was a pioneer in the study of spectrum analysis. He devised methods for splitting white light into the spectral colors, and conversely for recombining them into white light. But the primary phenomena of spectrum analysis, the study of the spectral lines, escaped him. He did not employ a sufficiently restricted light source. Wollaston, in 1802, passing a beam of sunlight through a very narrow slit, observed the spectral lines, but was unable to explain them. Twelve years later, a German optician, Fraunhofer, made a systematic study and catalog of these lines. Although he was unable to explain their significance, he made such a thorough study of these lines that they have been named for him, Fraunhofer's lines.

Newton entertained the view that light was caused by minute particles of matter emanating from a hot body and striking the eye, thus imparting the sensation of light. This corpuscular theory was combated by the Dutch scientist Huyghens, who conceived the idea of the luminferous ether and thought of light as the vibration of waves in this ether. Thus he explained the phenomena of diffraction, by which light waves when passing a straight edge, spread and bend around the edge.

On the basis of this undulatory theory of light, the atoms of each particular chemical element, when duly excited, give out a certain definite set of waves, peculiar to these atoms. There is a definite length for these different waves, varying with the type of atom. A wave length, meaning the distance between successive wave crests, may be, for example, one fifty-thousandths of an inch. Waves produce different effects, the longest giving the sensation of red, the shortest the sensation of blue.

It took a great deal of study to determine the meaning of the dark lines in the spectrum. How this was accomplished is lucidly explained by Harlan True Stetson in Man and the Stars. Let us see, in a simple way, how to recognize the characteristic colors of different substances. For example, a piece of ordinary table salt burned in a hot gas flame gives out an intense yellow light. This is due to the element sodium; and the wave length of sodium light is 0.0000589 centimeters. If I add to the ordinary salt, another salt, strontium chloride, I shall get a very brilliant orange-colored flame. The spectrum from the filament of an incandescent lamp gives a continuous spectrum, from red to violet.

The so-called dark lines in the spectrum are really gaps. If between the source of white light and the prism spectroscope a large mass of cool sodium vapor is inserted, this vapor, at a lower temperature than the light source, has absorbed from the original source that specific band of color which would have been contributed by the sodium vapor itself. This gap is the yellow of the continuous spectrum shows up as a dark line. This interpretation of the dark lines of the solar spectrum was due primarily to Kirchoff in 1859.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Someone writes—"Why do you so often say, 'I don't know?' You're supposed to know. If you don't, your boss had better hire someone who does."

Maybe so, stranger. And if my Boss starts looking, he'll doubtless find many who feel better equipped to write this column than I . . . for People Who Know Everything are the commonest thing there is in any market. And yet—there are certain large advantages in not knowing and being willing to admit it—

Not that I was always this way. Like most youngsters, I started with the idea that I had the Inside Dope on all creation. Were you puzzled by God . . . bewildered by Life . . . Confused about your neighbor . . . uncertain about yourself? Ask me! I had an answer for everything!

From which you might think that I was sitting pretty and having a grand time. As a matter of fact, I was anything but!

For the more I knew, or thought I knew, the more miserable I felt. Instead of widening life into an alluring adventure, my "knowledge" made it seem a biological blunder. Instead of glorifying and illuminating man, my reasoning made a bum of him.

All of which was very discouraging. What was the use of taking a chance with life when it was such a fizzle, or with man when he was such a flop? So I reasoned. And the more I reasoned, the sicker I got. Until gradually it began to dawn on me that knowledge wasn't such a treat after all. . . . THAT I MIGHT EVEN HAVE MORE FUN IF I DIDN'T KNOW SO MUCH!

Well, things couldn't be any worse—that was sure. The experiment was worth trying . . . IN SUDDEN EXASPERATION I STOOD UP, FACED THE WHOLE SHOW AND SAID—"I DON'T KNOW."

And suddenly amazingly, everything changed!

At these magic words, all the tight explanations and stingy solutions which I had tied on people and things dropped away . . . dropped away like dingy sheaths . . . and Life emerged in its vast, unreasonable beauty, in its infinite variety and mystery.

And I saw that you couldn't define or explain Life—that Life went on and on, beyond all interruptions and confusions and mistakes.

And I saw that you couldn't define or explain Man—that he, too, went on and on, beyond the feeble and furious things of his body, beyond the foolish mishaps of experience.....on and on, into unexpected beauty and bravery—

Even the dullest Life, even the weakest Man, went on like that. You never could tell—

No, you never could tell about God or Life or Man or Yourself. But it didn't matter. Everything went right along, even if you couldn't explain it. You went right along, too—seeing visions you couldn't understand, bearing harvests you couldn't analyze. And Life was much more exciting, and Man much more loveable, and God, somehow nearer, if you didn't try to know it all. You even got on better with Yourself.

Why do I say—"I don't know?" That's why. Because I have discovered that no one can know . . . BUT THESE SMART ONES WATCH AND WONDER.

If we may believe our logicians, man is distinguished from all other creatures by the faculty of laughter.—Addison.

There is not any one vice incident to the mind of man against which the world has raised such a loud and universal outcry as against ingratitude.—South.

Pleasure is a shadow, wealth is vanity, and power a pageant; but knowledge is ecstatic in enjoyment, perennial in frame, unlimited in space and indefinite in duration.—De Witt Clinton.

Men seldom think deeply on subjects on which they have no choice of opinion; they are fearful of encountering obstacles to their faith and so are content with the surface.—Sheridan.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Thrice Blest

How wise is he who can recall
The best of life alone,
Who from his days can banish all
Of evil he has known.

How strong is he who makes no pause
For weak regrets or fears;
But puts his faith in being's laws
And builds for future years!

How brave is he who forges on,
Serene, untouched by doubt,
Who fights when every chance seems gone
And hope has flickered out!

Thrice blest is he who knows no ill,
Who toils and shrinks from naught;
Life's forces bend before his will,
He rules by valiant thought!

Text For Today

But let us, who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation.—I Thessalonians, v:8.

Orders Are Orders

When Foreign Nations Give Them.

UNCLE SAM WILL DESTROY THESE SUBMARINES, OBEYING ORDERS FROM ABROAD.

This photograph taken in the Philadelphia drydock shows United States submarines. Look at them now, for soon you will not be able to see them.

The naval pact arranged in London compels Uncle Sam to junk these expensive and useful undersea craft.

How does that impress you? What do you think about allowing foreign nations to tell us what kind of protection for this country we may and may not possess? WHY, in the name of heaven, and George Washington?

Submarines, needless to say, next to airplanes, are the most important weapons of defense in modern war.

With a sufficient number of submarines, guided by aircraft overhead, it would be impossible for ships to attack any part of the United States coast line. They would be sunk long before landing.

For Great Britain we have only friendship and good wishes.

But that is not a reason for allowing the British to tell us how many submarines we may have. The British have the greatest commercial fleets afloat, and naturally object to submarines that could destroy them.

But in the first place they ought to trust us, and take it for granted that while they behave we are not going to use submarines against them.

And in the second place, whether they trust us or not, we ought to have as many submarines as we need, and airplanes, too, and not ask anybody's permission.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 23.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Early up. Scales show I gained nine pounds the past year and so feasting on smoked sausage, spiced with chili peppers, from Maj. Dickson in Houston and Clara Bell Walsh and Adele Rowland dropped in a moment.

So at my stint and abroad with my wife, stopping to say farewell to Watterson Rothacker, off for Sumatra, Java and Borneo. Then putting in at Vincent Lopez's apartment and he played an African lament on the piano which had a barbic tom-tom bass as savage as ever I heard.

In the evening to a benefit and saw performers such as Roy Atwell, De Wolf Hopper, Donald Brian and Lina Abarbanell whom I had not seen in years. Then seeing Sax Rohmer, the British novelist, and home where I read his latest thriller, "Daughter of Fu Manchu," until very late.

Ted Cook, the humorist, is on the last lap of a six-months' experiment in living in one of the old houses in the Greenwich Village section. He is still cutting his hair, has not fallen for a smock and remains devoted to his wife. He finds the Village pleasant, but when visitors call he insists upon showing them pictures of his home, his children and his collection of sheep dogs in California.

Cook's western home is like a castle hanging on a Pyr crag far back in a Beverly Hills canyon, the workshop looking down upon many of the surrounding estates of movie notables. His study is a glass enclosed structure built around a python-limbed oak.

Most of New York's new de luxe hotels have difficulty getting under way. Often they bounce around in fussily feathered futility for a year or so. Several months after the now successful Biltmore opened a despairing manager went to the roof top and leaped to his death.

Similarly the Ambassador on Park avenue struggled through many weeks of emptiness before it turned the corner into a steady patronage. The famous Holland House went through a similar period of travail as did the old Fifth Avenue.

The Ansonia on upper Broadway, which later picked up a nice volume of business, was for a long time dubbed, "Stoke's Folly." About the only hotel to start at scratch with profit was the Ritz Carlton. The St. Regis is one hotel to go into a slump and make a marvelous comeback.

The majority of private hospitals in New York now permit dogs to visit convalescent patients. For years a strict rule forbade this. Doctors found so many dog lovers were made restless by being denied their pets the rule was abandoned.

Harry Carey, star of that grand picture, "Trader Horn," was a boyhood schoolmate of Mayor Walker. Carey, whose father was a Tammany politician, is a native New Yorker who went completely "western." A tank town trouper for years, he stranded in California and remained there. He is an experienced ranchman and like good old W. S. Hart, another New Yorker, is not only an expert horseman, but has a pronounced cowboy drawl.

Almost overnight the theatrical map in West Forty-second street is tinged with a Fourteenth street vulgarity. Two burlesque shows are being presented at the Liberty and the Republic—once Thespic temples for notable legitimate stars. There are pawky nosed comics with green whiskers, splay feet and baggy pantaloons along with gold toothed blondes in tights and sour sopranos in wide hats. The slap sticks whang and seltzer bottles squirt. And hardby is the Flea Circus now in the seventh year of its astonishing run in the Rialto's heart.

Earl Carroll in full evening dress suggests a mortician. He is tall, lean, hollow-eyed and cadaverous. At a party the other night Heywood Broun lugubriously greeted him with: "The body is on the second floor, to the right."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There is not much to keep the balance of a woman of brains whose care all day long is children and keeping them out of harm and mischief.

No matter how much she loves home and children, no matter how devoted to her husband and his interests, children and "baby talk," exclusions of other interests is bad for the health and boresome.

She longs for opportunities to converse with those who can understand something besides words of one syllable.

It is not sufficient that a husband provide a good home and some luxuries for his wife, if he spends his evenings at the club or lodge.

The woman who is a student wants not only to read, but to have some one with whom she can discuss her reading.

Perhaps she cannot find the time to go out to women's clubs herself.

She must be housekeeper and baby tender, clothes mender and jack of all trades to keep up her home and the loved ones in it.

Married life becomes drab indeed if she is also denied the society and the sympathetic understanding of her husband.

Planning meals and budgets and making them come out right is all very well, but there is not complete happiness without mental uplift and opportunity for self expression.
